Swing Charges Power Firms Fight Dam

CONGRESS IS DELUGED BY PROPAGANDA

California Man Says Big Corporations Would Defeat Colorado Project

SPEAKS BEFORE HOUSE

Representative Says He Believes Same Interests Opposing Muscle Shoals

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 31.—A charge that the "power corporations" of the country are in combination to thwart the country's intention by defeating the Boulder dam Colorado river project, was made in the house today by Representative Swing, Republican, California.

Swing, co-author of the Swing-Johnson bill, asserted that "undercover men of the power corporations" were causing "a deluge of propaganda" to be showered upon congressmen to foster opposition to the bill.

"Are the same interests trying to thwart disposition of the Muscle Shoals question?" asked Representative Jacobstein, Republican, New York.

"I understand they are," Swing replied.

Swing said he was still hopeful of obtaining a special rule to allow consideration of the bill by the house this session, although appropriation bills and farm relief proposals will take up much of the remaining five weeks of the session.

Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican, California, co-author of the Swing-Johnson Boulder canyon dam bill, inaugurated action in the senate today and forced consideration of the measure in its place on the program of the steering committee.

Opponents objected to setting a time for consideration of the measure, on the ground that the steering committee program should be given precedence.

TEXAS RESOLUTION OPPOSES PROJECT

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 31.—The Swing-Johnson Boulder dam bill, pending in congress, was condemned in a concurrent resolution, to be introduced in the house today, as being of no real or permanent benefit and furthering cotton overproduction.

If constructed, the irrigation plan would open large tracts of land for cotton production, thus bringing about a still greater overproduction of cotton, the resolution stated.

"Its necessary effect is to greatly complicate the problems and increase loss now being suffered by the agricultural interests of the nation generally," the resolution said.

SENATE HOLDS UP NAVY MONEY BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The naval appropriation bill carrying $1,200,000, for starting work on three new light cruisers, was laid aside by the senate today, but will be considered tomorrow.

Interruption of discussion resulted from the absence of several senators, who desired to register a vote.

It was learned pressure is being exerted on senators to stand by the president in his opposition to the cruiser program. Mr. Coolidge holds passage of the initial cruiser appropriation might jeopardize his efforts for a new disarmament conference.

Administration leaders hoped the delay would lend strength to their side.

CRISIS IS REACHED IN DRY ENFORCEMENT, SAYS CZAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—A crisis has been reached in prohibition enforcement, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews said today.

The entire situation has been put up to congress and it is up to that body to go ahead, stand still or retreat, Andrews said.

"We have built up an efficient organization that has just begun to function properly," he said. "But with dual responsibility at headquarters and the

AMERICAN WARSHIPS IN SHANGHAI HARBOR TO PROTECT FOREIGNERS AS NATIONALIST ARMY SWEEPS ON CITY

Shanghai, great port on the east coast of China, is the prize for which the Cantonese "Nationalists" and Great Britain may soon battle. The British are rushing troops from India to protect their interests there, while the Chinese armies are moving steadily toward the city. Meanwhile, Shanghai is a concentration point for foreign troops and warships and for thousands of refugees from the interior. These Shanghai pictures show: Upper, the harbor, with an American warship in the foreground; lower left, the Chinese-British bank building; right, the Russian Soviet embassy, in the rear of which is the Astor hotel.

REFUGEES FLEE FROM HOMES AS LEVEE BREAKS

Hundreds Are Driven Out By High Waters in Arkansas

(By United Press)

BRASSFIELD, Ark., Jan. 31.—Flood refugees, many of them penniless and inadequately clothed, arrived here today in ever-increasing numbers as the levee on the White river, below McClelland, Ark., gave way and inundated hundreds of additional acres of rich farm land.

The latest levee break occurred unexpectedly today, as workers concentrated on what appeared the hopeless task of keeping the river walls intact at Des Arc, DeWalls Bluff and Brassfield. Water was seeping through so rapidly that the sand washed out almost as soon as workers could bank it in.

Water is a foot deep on the streets of DeWalls Bluff and rising rapidly. The first floor of the Central hotel there was abandoned last night.

It is estimated that more than 200 refugees are here. They were hurried up last night in every available sleeping place. Tears mingled with laughter as they struggled into the city and resigned themselves to the circumstances.

Fifty tents have been erected on high ground by the National Guard. These housed the bulk of the homeless. Governor McInerney has been asked to rush food and clothing. Refugees have requested a relief train dispatched here as soon as possible.

OHIO RIVER IS STILL RISING

HARRISBURG, Ill., Jan. 31.—Flood conditions of the Ohio river, at Shawneetown, assumed ominous proportions today following a six-inch rise in the river over night. The stage at Shawneetown was reported 47.8 feet early today and rising rapidly. Similar conditions prevailed at Roselake, where inhabitants of lowlands were moving back to the hills.

Maneuvers of Army to Be Held on Border

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—U. S. army maneuvers will be held in the Mexican border area in April, the United Press learned today. In addition to troops of the eighth corps area, most of the army air corps will participate.

War department officials deny that the maneuvers have any political significance or relation to the dispute with Mexico.

MOB DISAPPOINTED AT BROWNING TRIAL

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 31.—Edward W. Browning today began dumping his basket of figurative rubber eggs on Frances "Peaches" Heenan Browning, his wife.

With the resumption of the case, after three days' recess, Browning called witness after witness to testify to the idyllic family life of Browning and Peaches, which lasted for six months and ended when both went to court.

The day had just one disappointment for the crowd of some 400 persons, who, sitting on one another's laps and jamming the aisles like a rush hour on the subway, listened to the proceedings.

That disappointment came when the court ruled out Peaches' diary and three letters.

After that, the chapter syndicate story of "Why I Left Daddy Browning" was introduced in evidence and an army of waiters told how Browning always kept flowers on Peaches' table at the inn where they lived; how well dressed she was; and how they billed and cooed like pigeons instead of quarreling like African honking geese—at least it public.

It took a handful of policemen and deputy sheriffs to get Browning through the crowds which packed the corridors and to his rented Rolls-Royce when court recessed at noon. It was estimated that 8000 persons were around the courthouse at the opening of the session.

SHIP SEIZED BY CHINA PIRATES CALLS FOR AID

Foreign War Vessels on Way to Assistance Of Passengers

(By United Press)

HONGKONG, Jan. 31.—The Chinese-owned British mail steamer Seang Bee, enroute to Hongkong from Singapore, wireless today for help, following an attack by pirates.

The meager wireless statement reported the matter and European passengers have been taken ashore by the Pirates at Blas bay, near Amoy, China.

Foreign warships were rushing under full steam to their aid.

The Seang Bee is listed in Lloyds register as a steel steamer of 5849 tons, owned by Lim Chim Tsong, of Rangoon.

It was reported that 100 pirates, who had shipped as passengers, seized the Seang Bee at sea, on Thursday morning. The skipper and officers were placed under guard, while the pirates proceeded with the robbing of Chinese passengers. At Blas bay, the pirates were reported to have fled with their loot and five Chinese passengers, the latter to be held for ransom.

No amplification was received here of the report that European passengers had been taken ashore.

DOHENY TAX SUIT DISMISSAL ASKED

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—Attorney for E. L. Doheny, oil magnate, appeared in Federal Judge James' court here today, seeking dismissal of an income tax suit for $119,591.13, filed by the government against Doheny, members of his family and the Doheny Petroleum company.

The legality of the government claim against the oil magnate, who recently was acquitted with former Secretary of Interior Fall, in Washington, of charges of conspiracy to defraud the government of valuable naval oil resources, it was said, centered on whether a merger or sale occurred when the Doheny Petroleum company was taken over by the Pan-American Petroleum company.

The Doheny, Mrs. Doheny and their son, E. L. Doheny Jr., are named in the government complaint.

BORAH WILL OPEN ATTACK ON COOLIDGE

Senator from Idaho Asks Quick Diplomatic Action To Meet Crisis in Orient

PROTECTION IS FIRST

President for Shielding American Citizens and Discussing Terms Later

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The administration faces another attack on its foreign policy. Hitherto it has been Nicaragua and Mexico. Now it is to be about China.

Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, and Representative Porter, head of the house foreign relations committee, want quick diplomatic action to meet the Chinese crisis.

President Coolidge, after the cool Chinese reception of Secretary of State Kellogg's statement of policy, has ordered three of the best cruisers in the navy to Hawaii to join the American armada of 55 war vessels already in or near Chinese waters.

Protection Comes First
With anti-foreign riots and civil war menacing the lives and property of the 12,000 Americans in China, the president has decided to provide protection first and talk terms after.

But Senator Borah, Chinese Minister Sze and missionary representatives argue that large show of foreign force is provocative in a highly dangerous situation, which only quick, friendly diplomacy can meet.

Three incidents today forced the administration to focus attention on the Chinese problem and stimulated demands for what its advocates term a more liberal American policy.

1.—Reaction here to the new British policy, enunciated by Foreign Minister Chamberlain and supported by the opposition leaders MacDonald and Lloyd George. The British move was generally interpreted as gaining Great Britain a more favored position than the United States in China. Chamberlain's statement, promising acceptance of Nationalist demands for tariff autonomy and abrogation of foreign extra-territorial rights, goes much further than Kellogg's similar statement, according to Kellogg's critics.

2.—Refusal of Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, of the northern conservative Chinese faction, to release, on demand of the American consul, the abducted editor of the American Shanghai Courier, Kent Wells, decreased faith here in the northern faction, which holds Peking and Shanghai. Meanwhile there were reports of increased Nationalist and pro-Cantonese sentiment among the Shanghai and Peking populace.

3.—Military reports described the radical Cantonese armies as drawing closer to Shanghai, with a decisive battle expected soon within shell fire of that port. Capture by the Cantonese of Shanghai, trading and foreign center of the Orient, might force the United States to deal with that government directly, as the British are now doing. Kellogg's present position is that he will deal only with joint delegates of both factions.

The Cantonese demand immediate ratification of the so-called unequal treaties, while Kellogg proposes only conditional gradual abolition of the foreign right to maintain courts and troops in China.

Although the president is relying on the U. S. fleet and marines to protect the 5000 Americans in Shanghai, he is studying the Cantonese proposal that Shanghai be made a temporary neutral zone without foreign or native troops with the conservative forces withdrawing 25 miles from the city for a decisive battle with the invading Nationalists.

Supplies are taken to San Diego pier. Marine trucks laden with supplies, arrived at the mole pier today, with supplies, supposedly for the transport Chaumont, believed to be due to sail soon from San Diego for the Orient with the marine expeditionary battalion of some 400 men.

DARING HOLDUP CALLED STUNT FOR PUBLICITY

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Daily Express says the mysterious experience of Frederick A. Mitchell-Hedges, explorer and author, which kept the country in a ferment for many hours recently, was "a publicity stunt in which he shared."

The paper prints what purports to be a true story of the affair according to which the men who attacked the author-explorer, scuffled about and smeared themselves with mud to give the appearance of reality to the story they told the police.

It was near Ripley, Surrey, that Mitchell-Hedges, and a friend were held up by six men in the early morning hours. They were taken to a secluded spot and trusted up. Later the explorer's suitcase, said to contain valuable documents, which was carried off, was returned intact to Mitchell-Hedges, and he agreed to take no action against those who perpetrated the practical joke, as it was called.

The explanation was made that the prank arose out of a lecture delivered before the National Liberal club, it being said that Mitchell-Hedges had received a letter from a member of the club that six young Liberals took exception to his remark about lack of nerve in the present case of British youth and made up their minds to prove the opposite in a striking way.

FOREIGNERS FEAR NEW YEAR OUTBREAK

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31.—Thousands of foreigners, awaiting the impending fall of the city before the invading armies of South China, today were tensely in fear that celebration of the Chinese new year might be transformed into an anti-foreign demonstration.

Kent Wells associate editor of the American-Registered China Courier, was arrested on a British warrant charging him with failure to pay taxes. A few hours later, armed Chinese abducted him and also seized Francis Zia, Chinese editor of the same paper.

Brought before Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, chief of the defending armies of Shanghai, they were charged with sedition and threatened with execution.

Insistent demands by the American consul that they be released have been unavailing.

Wells, authorities said, has admitted he was offered a Nationalist advisorship by South China, but denied he had accepted. His arrest on a technical charge and the subsequent abduction was interpreted to have been provoked by the antagonistic attitude of the Courier to the North China cause and its support of the Cantonese government.

PEKING PROTESTS BRITISH WAR MOVE

PEKING, Jan. 31.—The Peking government today protested to Great Britain against the dispatch of British troops, battleships, tanks and airplanes to China. LONG BEACH YOUTH, REJECTED IN LOVE, SHOOT SANTA ANA GIRL AND THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Swayed by the thought that the girl he loved was enamored of another and despondent because she had refused to marry him, Charles Horton, 21, an oil worker, of 605 Cherry avenue, Long Beach, committed suicide at 11:30 last night, a few seconds after he had shot and seriously wounded the girl, Alice Beckett, 27, of Santa Ana.

The tragedy occurred in the home of the Beckett girl, Ambassador apartments, 401 West First street. Horton was found in the yard, unconscious, by police. He died an hour and a quarter later, without regaining consciousness.

A bullet from the same gun with which the youth had wounded the girl plowed through Horton's brain after he had placed the muzzle of the automatic pistol in his mouth and pulled the trigger, police said.

Girl's Condition Serious

Reports from the hospital late today were to the effect that Miss Beckett's condition was serious. The bullet passed through her left shoulder, emerging under the shoulder blade.

According to information obtained by police, in a hurried investigation of the shooting, Horton came to the girl's home early in the evening and asked her to go out with him. She refused, stating that she had an engagement with another man, according to Sgt. Robert Elliott, of the police force, who interviewed the woman in the hospital.

According to Elliott's report, Horton then left the house. At 11:30 he returned, called Miss Beckett to the door and fired one shot—at her. She was standing behind the screened door entrance to her apartment at the time. Horton, walked into the front yard, then placed the muzzle of the gun in his mouth and shot himself.

Miss Beckett was able to run into the street and cry for help. Jimmy Skirvin and W. F. Nelson, occupants of one car, and J. M. Natland, John Christensen, C. R. Christensen and Mrs. B. M. McChesney, riding in another machine, were attracted by the girl's screams.

Officers Find Body

Miss Beckett was taken to the hospital in the Natland machine, while Nelson and Skirvin drove to the sheriff's office to notify officers. D. D. Adams and Clyde Flower, deputy sheriffs, returned with Nelson to the scene of the tragedy, where Horton was found.

There had been no previous trouble between the man and woman, Miss Beckett is said to have told Sergeant Elliott. Miss Beckett told Elliott, the officer said, that Horton had asked her to marry him, but that she had refused.

Horton's body was removed to the Smith and Tutill funeral parlors here and an inquest will be held at 4 p. m. today, with Charles Swanner, deputy coroner, in charge.

Horton's roadster, parked near the scene of the tragedy, was taken in charge by police and is being held at the police station. The 7-year-old was found a few feet from Horton's body.

Mrs. A. C. Reynolds, mother of Miss Beckett, arrived in Santa Ana early today from her home in Long Beach, to be with her daughter.

Motorist Charged With Illegal Use Of Siren on Auto

One of the smallest sirens ever seen by state traffic officers was taken off an automobile driven by L. E. Hoffman, 619 South Philadelphia street, Anaheim, at 4:30 p. m. yesterday, by Ray Bradford, state traffic officer, on the Lincoln boulevard.

At the same time, the driver of the machine was given a ticket, charging him with illegal use of a siren.

The siren is about the size of a flashlight, but according to Bradford, can make "plenty of noise."

Nearly 200 miles of railway track in Czechoslovakia are being electrified.

DANCE HALL GIRL SHOT BY HUSBAND

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Norma Foster, 25, pretty dance hall girl, was fighting for life in the General hospital, here today, with a bullet wound in her chest and arm, inflicted, it is alleged, by her husband, Sam Foster.

According to Mrs. Foster, she has been separated from her husband for about one month. She said she received a telephone call from Foster yesterday, asking her to meet him at his apartment. When she arrived at the address, Foster, she said, drew a revolver and shot her. Foster was arrested a short time later on a nearby street corner.

If there is anything which would influence men to adopt the woman's habit of trying on each others new hats it is the wonderful style of our new Snap Brim Stetsons for Spring!

It's Easier to Run Your Business with the

We should like to point out to you the thirty-one real reasons why you should use the L. C. Smith typewriter. Let us mention some of them:

When writing capitals, the type, not the carriage, shifts.

The decimal tabulator is an inbuilt part of the machine. It enables the operator to write units under units, tens under tens, etc., in columns, and as many columns may be written on a sheet as desired. It is also used for special indentation, for salutations, paragraphs, etc.

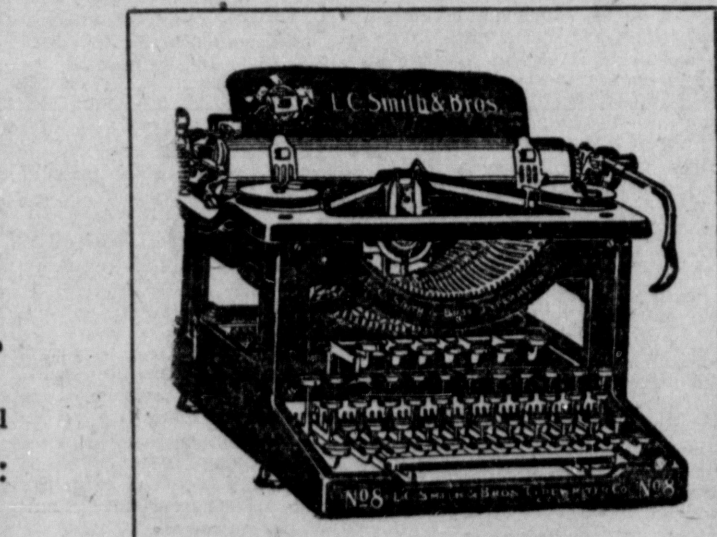

Changing ribbons on an L. C. Smith is the simplest thing imaginable.

The line-finder on the L. C. Smith enables the operator to remove and re-insert the paper in its exact former position. It is possible on this machine to place a letter or character in any desired spot on the sheet.

The L. C. Smith is so constructed that the platen, or roll, can be easily and quickly removed and another put in its place. Anyone can do this in a few seconds and without tools. This is especially desirable where more than one character of work is desirable on the machine.

The advantages of using such a machine will be perfectly apparent to any operator who will take the trouble to investigate. The operator who is not thoroughly familiar with this machine and who does not know all the things that can be done on it, is missing an opportunity to be of greater service to her employer.

Dozens of the best business houses in this town are equipped with the L. C. Smith. Next time you see one, ask the owner what he thinks of it.

A WORD OF COMFORT
The sweetest and most refreshing water comes not from soft fountains, but out of the hills of granite. The life most precious to his fellows is not the one bred in softness and ease but the one ness.

Trying as your experiences have been and poignant your sorrows they give to your power of help-

what you have become, the weak

MANY CHARGES ARE FACED BY L. A. SALESMAN

Many and varied will be the charges against N. D. Zorn, 36, salesman, of 367 Columbia street,
Los Angeles, when he is taken before Justice John Landell, at San Juan Capistrano, today.
An automobile driven by Zorn was found to contain something like 300 pints of beer, when it was overhauled on the state highway, near Gypsy flats, Saturday night,
at 10 o'clock.

The beer and car were confiscated, and, besides being charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, Zorn is accused of speeding 65 miles an hour and reckless driving.

The arresting officers were F. G.
Yoder and George Stinson, of the state traffic squad.

The beer was turned over to D.
D. Adams, head of the liquor detail of the sheriff's office, and probably will be taken to San Juan Capistrano this afternoon with the prisoner, as evidence.

The automobile driven by Zorn was registered to Helen Mayes,
367 1/2 South Columbia street,
Los Angeles, Yoder said today,
after an investigation.

Two persons were treated at the Santa Ana Valley hospital yesterday for injuries received in an automobile accident at Fifth and English streets, at 3:55 p. m. yesterday. Mrs. Belle Robinson, 63, Huntington Beach, received cuts and bruises and Miss Nora Davis suffered a sprained ankle.

The accident occurred when the driver of a car registered to Jake Davis, Huntington Beach, went into a ditch at the side of the road, in an attempt to avoid a collision with a machine driven by J. W.
Means, of Tustin, according to a report filed at the police station by E. A. Hershey, police officer, who investigated.

No one in the Means car was reported injured. Mrs. Robinson was thrown through the windshield of Davis' car and was severely cut, but her condition was not said to be serious.

Autoist Alleged To Have Crowded
Cops from Road

Charged with reckless driving,
William Morecraft, 25, Iceman, of 7434 South Swall drive, Beverly Hills, was jailed here at 9:30 last night by Officers Yoder and Stinson, of the state traffic squad.

He was arrested on the San Diego highway after his machine is alleged to have forced several cars, including the officers' machine, off the highway, according to a statement made today by Yoder.

Morecraft probably will be given a hearing late today in Justice
John Landell's court, in San Juan Capistrano.

Following a 20-minute sermon
by the Rev. F. T. Porter, President
W. B. Martin urged every member present to attend the Tuesday

County Has New
Sheriff, as Sam
Is Grandfather

It's Grandpa Sam Jernigan now.
The new cognomen has been in vogue since Saturday night, when a nine-pound son was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McFadden, at the Santa
Ana Valley hospital.

The sheriff is quite sure that, in spite of his grandfatherhood, he feels no older, and to prove it he smiles broader than ever.

Mrs. McFadden formerly was Maydell Jernigan, only child of Sheriff and Mrs. Jernigan.

Nurses in the hospital have nicknamed the baby "The Sheriff" and, when a wail is heard down the hallway, they wonder, if it's "The Sheriff" crying.

OIL DEVELOPMENT CAMPAIGN LOOMS WITH LEASING OF 70 ACRES IN COSTA MESA TRACT

Another big oil development campaign loomed in Orange county today, following the signing of an oil lease in Costa Mesa, which will result in a thorough test of the western section of that town. Jordan and Maney, well known oil operators and the pioneers of the Santa Fe Springs field, have secured a lease on 70 acres of land in the Costa Mesa Terrace tract and have posted $25,000 in the First National bank, Santa Ana, to guarantee that the well will be drilled to a depth of 5000 feet, it was reported today on good authority.

The lease calls for drilling, within 90 days, with heavy duty rotary equipment. The lease also provides that no oil formation is to be developed by the company at a depth of less than 2500 feet. Local oil men believe that a pool of oil will be found in the western section of Costa Mesa at a depth of about 4400 feet.

First Real Test
According to geologists, the Jordan and Maney well will be the first real test the western section of Costa Mesa has had. Many wells already are producing in the western section from a depth of about 700 feet and it is believed that more oil faults underlie the shallow zone.

The names of the property owners could not be learned today, but it is understood that the property leased is held by 20 well known Orange county persons.

The signing up of the lease with Jordan and Maney follows closely the purchase of a 524-acre tract, at Fairview, by George W. Derby, wealthy Bakersfield oil man, and the resumption of activity by the Interstate Oil company, in Costa Mesa.

Derby paid $250,000 for the 524-acre tract, according to reports, and indications are that he expects to develop it for oil. Several oil wells were drilled in that district more than a year ago.

The new lease is attracting widespread attention. The Interstate Oil company recently started operations on its Banning-Norris well, near the bluff west of town and at the end of Nineteenth street. At present, the company is endeavoring to go back into the old hole, which was reported at a depth of about 1400 feet. It is reported, however, that the rig may be sidetracked to a new location and a new hole drilled. The Interstate company has been one of the most persistent operators in the Costa Mesa district.

Two New Wells
Recent developments in Costa Mesa by the Bar Mor Oil company point to an increase in production from the shallow wells. The Bar Mor company has just brought in two new wells, completing the first from water shut off ever effected in the Costa Mesa district. According to geologists, this is an important step in the development of the field.

Salt water, which still remains in the oil, has heating qualities which make it necessary for the production of heavy oil, geologists claim. They also contend that the fresh water, which has caused much trouble, tends to congeal the heavy oil and makes it impossible to pump. The temperature of the oil in the two Bar Mor wells, where the fresh water has been shut out, has been tested by geologists and is found to be more than 100 degrees, according to reports.

Shallow wells in the Costa Mesa district are declared by geologists to be good investments. The wells are producing from a depth of 700 feet. They can be drilled in eight days with an ordinary line drill and, when completed, produce from five to 50 barrels of oil per day, which will return $1 per barrel at the well, it is claimed. The cost of drilling a shallow well is about $5000.

Jordan and Maney have been operating a light outfit on Eighteenth street for the last several weeks and, according to oil men, evidently have found out what they wanted to know regarding the formation. The Jordan and Maney interests have secured practically all of the Costa Mesa Terrace tract, with the exception of a 20-acre lease held by the Newport Oil company.

TO OPEN NEW REAL ESTATE CLASS HERE

The new class in real estate, held by the Santa Ana Realty board, will be formed under the auspices of meet at 7:30 p. m., Thursday, in the office of Carl Mock, 214 West Third street, it was announced today by Freeman H. Bloodgood, who will have charge of the class. Mock is president of the Santa Ana board.

Pointing out that the educational course has been prepared by the University of Southern California, in co-operation with leading realtors of the state, Bloodgood said that the course is designed to instruct men and women in all the branches of the real estate business, particularly with reference to the drawing and handling of legal papers involved in real estate transactions.

Two Are Injured When Cars Crash

P. E. Smith, of Whittier, suffered a fractured rib and a severe bruise on his right leg, in an automobile collision in Santa Ana canyon, near the Riverside county line, yesterday afternoon.

Smith was taken to the Orange County hospital by passing motorists and this morning was taken to his home.

GOOD RETURNS FOR NAVELS ON EASTERN MART

Excellent prices are being obtained on the eastern coast by California navel orange growers, with every indication that the favorable condition of the market will hold up until the valencias begin to go on the market, about April 15, Orange county packing house managers said today.

Reports from Florida show that the damage to the citrus fruits there, caused by the cold spell of January 10 to 15 and the hurricanes of the winter months, will result in the Florida citrus crop being the smallest since 1920-1921. According to conservative estimates at this time, the shortage of Florida fruit will be greater than the increase of California navels, compared with the crop last year from this period of the year into the valencia market.

The Orange county valencia crop, the harvesting of which will begin the second week in April, is well set and the growers expect to get as good prices as are being obtained for the navels. The harvesting will continue through to November.

Because Orange county navel plantings do not total much over 1000 acres, the excellent market conditions as regards that class of citrus fruit are not reflected so much in this section as in Riverside and San Bernardino counties, although the few navel growers in Orange county certainly have very little of which to complain, one authority said.

The cold weather of January somewhat checked the growth of the valencias, causing a slight slump in the development of the larger sizes, but, everything considered, the outlook is bright for the valencia crop and market at this time of year, it was said.

NATIVES OF CANADA TO ATTEND REUNION

Former residents of Canada, now living in Orange county, are planning to attend the thirteenth annual Canadian midwinter picnic and reunion in Exposition park Saturday, February 5. The fourth annual tourists' field sports carnival will be held at the same time, in the coliseum.

The Santa Ana band will present a concert from 12 to 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and will furnish music during the sports carnival, later in the afternoon. Several other municipal bands will participate in the reunion.

The program will commence with the registration of former Canadians at 9 a. m. International speakers, band concerts, special prize events, provincial roll call and athletic events are features promised by the executive committee in charge of the picnic.

2 Receive Junior College Diplomas

Two students in the Santa Ana junior college, completing the graduation requirements at mid-year, have been awarded diplomas and have enrolled at other colleges. Miss Norma Forman has registered in Broad Oaks college, Pasadena, and Iron Zaiser will attend the University of California, Southern Branch.

Why My Teeth Glisten

By Edna Wallace Hooper
Countless women ask me how I got my pretty teeth. I tell them simply what experts told me. They told me to use Quindent.

Quindent, as the name implies, is five tooth pastes in one. It contains 16 ingredients. Some 50 experts collaborated in its development. It contains antacids, antiseptics, cleansers and polishers, iodides and deodorants. It is intended to supply, in one application, all that the teeth require.

They tell me that Quindent, developed by the Quindent Laboratories, is the utmost in a tooth paste. And I believe it is. Certainly it has brought me a beauty that I prize.

The makers supply me with samples and I shall gladly mail a ten-day tube to anyone who asks. Please get that sample. I don't believe you will ever find a tooth paste to compare.

Evening Party Offers Musical Program As Entertainment

In planning a farewell courtesy for Mrs. Herbert M. Sammis before her departure for San Diego to join Mr. Sammis in their new home there, Mrs. Harry N. Hayes of 1516 Bush street, selected Saturday night as the date to coincide with Mr. Sammis's weekly visit with his family here at the home on Washington avenue where they have reigned so long.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes extended that friendly hospitality which is one of the charms of their home, to a little group of musical friends, and naturally when such a group played, the talent which its members share in common, will be foremost in entertainment. Hence the evening was given over to songs and piano numbers of rare enjoyment.

Miss Leonora Tompkins and Miss Mabel Krause shared honors as piano soloists, Miss Tompkins and Miss Ruth Armstrong as accompanists, and Mrs. Sammis, Monroe Shattuck, Miss Ann, John E. Handley of Los Angeles, and the hostess, Mrs. Hayes, as vocal soloists, and in addition were readings from a talented lad, 11-year-old George Monroe Jr., and monologues by Eleanor Young Elliott.

Miss Tompkins gave a brilliant rendering of MacDowell's "Novelletto" and as an added number, played a beautiful Barcarolle. Miss Krause chose Chopin, playing a Scherzo with power and brilliancy and following it with one of his shorter Preludes.

It was especially gratifying to hear Monroe Sharpless's clear and beautiful tenor again after his long silence due to an extended illness. The quality and strength were undiminished, and with Miss Ann, strong as his accompanist, he sang numbers selected from the music of his hostess, since he came unprepared to sing. "The Garden of My Heart" was one, "Who Knows" another, and later in the evening, he sang "Beloved, It Is I" and in duet with Mrs. Hayes, sang "Venetian Barcarolle" from "Love Tales from Hoffman," and other most enjoyable numbers.

Mrs. Sammis gave two delightful solos for which Miss Krause acted as accompanist. "Calm as the Night" with its graceful rhythms, was the first, followed by "Love Is the Wind," both of them sung with the power and charm that are factors in her popularity. Her audience demanded more, so later in the program, she consented to sing again and chose "I Think" which she sang quite as beautifully as she did the earlier group.

John E. Handley of Los Angeles, was a week-end guest in the Sharpless home on Newport Road, and his inclusion in the party added a baritone soloist to the group. Miss Armstrong played the accompaniments for his chosen numbers, "Friend of Mine" by Sanderson, and "Pale Moon." His voice was both rich and sweet, and he sang with pleasing lack of effort.

The guests were much interested in hearing that youthful reader, Master George Monroe, for he has been well received wherever he has appeared on programs. His poise and self-possession were marked in one so young, and his style was excellent. "People Will Talk" was his first number, followed by two in dialect, "Isn't That So?" (German) and "Carlotto" (Italian). Mrs. Elliott also gave readings, choosing one of Don Marquis' "Thoughts of Hermione" and a child impersonation.

While Mrs. Hayes had not included herself in her program plans, her guests demanded a song, and she gave "Carlesina" by Penn (a special request) and "Wake Up" by Phillips, both sparkling numbers well adapted to her clear soprano. She and Mr. Hayes then gave one of the most pleasing numbers of the evening, a duo rendering of "La Golondrina."

Music was succeeded by refreshments, and Miss Claire Sharpless aided the hosts in serving the most delicious of home-made cakes with prune whip topped with whipped cream, and coffee or tea.

The guests lingered for informal chat, during which regrets were expressed that the community had to lose the Sammises. Mr. Sammis has been in San Diego for several months but Mrs. Sammis remained here until the end of the semester so their son, Herbert Jr., need not interrupt his school work. Asked to enjoy the evening in their honor, were Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. A. Winbiger, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Sharpless, Mrs. H. H. Reeves, Mrs. Eleanor Elliott, the Misses Ruth Armstrong, Bertha Armstrong, Carrie Seaton, Claire Sharpless, Violet Fekner, Leonora Tompkins, Mabel Krause, Alice Folsom, Elizabeth Parslow, Messrs. Monroe Sharpless and John E. Handley and Master George Monroe Jr.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

United Brethren

Twenty women gathered in the social rooms of the U. B. church to cut and piece quilts last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. E. A. Fones led in devotion by reading a chapter from Hebrews and Mrs. Keister led in prayer. Mrs. E. A. Stricklin read an interesting report of the previous meeting. The work committee of which Mrs. J. A. Deakin is chairman reported two comforts ready to the next week.

Since Thursday will be the annual thank offering day it was decided to have a combined meeting of the two societies. The Aid will meet at 10 o'clock to sew. At noon there will be a pot-luck luncheon, after which Mrs. Arthur Hervey will have charge of the afternoon meeting. Thank offering boxes will be opened. Mrs. Emma Bartlett as hostess, served a dainty lunch to the company.

Fidelas Class
Mrs. Charles Baldwin, 1010 Fairview avenue, entertained the retiring officers of the Fidelas class from the First Baptist Sunday school of which she was president, last Thursday afternoon.

The time was very pleasantly spent doing fancy work, visiting and listening to several musical numbers over the radio. Mrs. Elmer Kinsley, who is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Peters was a special guest at the party. The hostess served delicious chicken brown and white sandwiches, pickles, cherryade and dates stuffed with nuts.

Eight guests were present and enjoyed the hospitality and delightful afternoon spent together.

Class Party
Members of Mrs. L. D. Mercereau's Sunday school class of the First Presbyterian church, with their husbands and friends, were delightfully entertained on a recent evening when they met at the Ramona building for their monthly party. It is just recently that the class has been meeting in the Ramona building, which is owned by L. D. Mercereau. Previous to that, the parties were held in the homes of different members but Mrs. Mercereau offered the basement as a meeting place to accommodate the rapidly growing class. The room has been attractively furnished and makes an ideal place for parties.

The early part of the evening was spent in playing several interesting games, parodies on such active games as baseball and volleyball. A short program was held when the following artists performed, Miss Gladys Thomas and Walter Cook presented a piano selection played on two pianos, Neal Gammell gave a violin solo, Mrs. Dorcas Alexander gave a reading, DeGray Tuft sang several songs, Miss Mildred Marchant gave two whistling solos and Mrs. Pauline Marson sang.

Refreshments were served by the entertainment committee which included Mrs. Charlotte Gammell, Miss Lydia Ward, Mrs. Dorcas Alexander, Mrs. Dorothy Rowan, Mrs. Aletta Cole, and Mrs. Mercereau.

Sister's Home Opened For Pretty Wedding Of Young Couple

Solemnized Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horn, 2421 French street, was the wedding of Mrs. Horn's only sister, Miss Phyllis McKinley of Los Angeles, to Vernon Riley of this city, a member of the Holly Sugar corporation.

The attractiveness of the Horn home was increased by decorations which suggested the spring-time, both in color and profusion, for feathery acaia was combined with graceful lilies and other blossoms of the season. Friends and relatives from other localities, assembled for the ceremony, which was conducted by the Rev. Arnold Bode, rector of the Episcopal church in Anaheim, who had officiated a few years ago at the wedding of the hosts.

A brief musical program preceding the ceremony, offered favorite bridal numbers including "At Dawning" by Cadman and Loheingrin's Wedding March to which the young people entered the room, taking their places before the Rev. Mr. Bode. Miss McKinley made a charming picture in an exquisite frock of pale pink beaded georgette and satin, which had been sent for the occasion, by an aunt living in Boston. A great cluster of roses, just a shade deeper in tint than the gown, completed the lovely effect.

After the young people had concluded their wedding vows, the guests were given opportunity to greet them and extend good wishes before being asked to the flower-decked dining-room where Mrs. Horn had planned a delectable refreshment course consisting of ice cream slices centered with strawberry hearts, a bride's cake baked by herself, and no less delicious than a companion one made by the bride; home-made marshmallows and candy hearts, served with coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley are already established in a pretty home at 1024 West Fourth street where they will greet their friends. Mrs. Riley will be warmly welcomed by the interesting circle in which her sister, Mrs. Horn, is extremely popular.

Among the guests gathered at the Horn home for the nuptial event were Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKinley, parents of the bride, and Mrs. Mary Hunter, her grandmother, all of Los Angeles; Mrs. Mary Riley of this city, mother of the groom and also his brother and aunt, Melvin Riley and Miss Eldora Hollingsworth, also of Santa Ana; Mrs. Charles Maloney, Miss Ruth Maloney, Mrs. Foster Stewart, Mrs. Edgar Burdette, Mrs. Marie Belangee, Miss Helena Belangee, Mrs. Hazel McLaughlin, Miss Alymer, Mrs. Pauline Livingston and Edwin Webb, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Threlkeld, San Gabriel; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hingley, Inglewood; Dale Garnett, Mrs. William Bruce, Miss Lois Bruce, Long Beach; the Rev. Arnold Bode and Mrs. Bode, Anaheim; Mrs. Hannah Horn and Miss Henrietta Horn, Santa Ana.

All entertainment plans and instead go in a body to attend the funeral of their founder, Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, "club mother." All members are asked to be in the Inn promptly at 12:30 o'clock at which time serving will begin.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the First Methodist church will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the church parlors. The program will be as follows: devotion, Mrs. Laura Brandebury; chapter five of the study book, Mrs. P. A. Robinson; magazine stories, Mrs. John Lonsbury; talk on the Yuma Indians, Miss Blanch Collins. A meeting of the executive committee is called for 1 o'clock.

The Baptist Home Missionary society will celebrate its golden anniversary at an all-day meeting Wednesday in the church parlors where special music and a program will all tend to emphasize the importance of the event. A "golden luncheon" will be served at 12:30 o'clock with Mrs. Roland Dye in charge of arrangements. It will be a pot-luck affair with salad and dessert to be served by the hostess committee. The program will follow.

The Unitarian Women's Alliance will meet Wednesday morning in the church social rooms for an all-day sewing meeting. The usual luncheon plan will prevail.

All members of the W. C. T. U. are asked to meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 at the Winbiger Mission Funeral home, in order to attend the services for Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, in a body.

Mrs. Britton Is Made Incentive for Gay Bridge Shower

Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Britton (by which name her friends are trying to learn to address the former Miss Margaret Lyon) was incentive for one of the prettiest parties of last week, when Miss Virginia Metzgar and Miss Maiva Diehl, joined in complimenting her at a bridge luncheon of smart appointments.

The beautiful James C. Metzgar home at 407 West Santa Clara avenue, was decked in flowers for the event, and a most appetizing luncheon enjoyed by the guests, was deftly served by the Misses Eleanor and Evelyn Metzgar, cousins of one of the young hostesses. Each table was centered with a tall taper, and the general effect was dainty and spring-like.

As the afternoon progressed, the tables were prepared for bridge in which the honoree herself held high score, receiving an attractive trophy set. Miss Roberta Dawes was awarded consolation prize. Mrs. Britton then received the surprise of the afternoon when she was presented with an array of handsome bath towels from the assembled guests, who wished to be represented in the linen supply which the young bride will carry with her to her eastern home in so short a time.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Britton took her friends considerably by surprise a few days ago, by revealing that she had been married last May while visiting friends in Florence, Ariz. Mr. Britton is a young Texan, now of New York City, and will return to claim his bride and take her to their eastern home, in the near future. In the meantime, her popularity among her friends is being daily attested by a series of delightful events.

At the one given Saturday by Miss Diehl and Miss Metzgar, the honoree, who is of fairytale proportions and a charming blondeness, was picturesque and lovely in one of her trousseau frocks, an imported model in Nigre georgette with shoes, gossamer hose and a chic little hat to correspond. Enjoying the afternoon with her and the hostesses were Mrs. Carl Burns, Mrs. Horace Stevens, Miss Roberta Dawes, Mrs. Fred Forgy, Mrs. F. C. Arnim, Mrs. William H. De Wolfe, Miss Florence Chapman of Los Angeles, Mrs. George Baker and Mrs. Milburn Harvey.

College Bachelors Give Annual Ball

Bachelors of the Santa Ana junior college had their fling, socially, when they feled the student body members at the annual Bachelor ball, held Saturday night, in a colorful setting in the Santa Ana country clubhouse. About 60 couples attended, making the occasion one of the most successful dances to have been held this year in college circles.

The clubhouse was gayly decorated and streamers of purple and white, the college colors, added to the effect. Shortly after 9 o'clock the dance was in full swing and the merry-making continued until "Home Sweet Home" was played by the orchestra at 12 o'clock.

Favors passed out to the dancers were unique, and quite appropriate. The modern bachelor, substituting a cigarette for the old pipe, still wants his socks darned. So the co-eds were given little thimbles as favors while the Bachelors received cigarette favors. Later in the evening cricket favors in varied hues were distributed.

Punch was served by Donald Purvis, junior college bachelor, made up as a dorky. The Bachelor officers in charge of the dance were Kenneth Schroll, grand exalted Bachelor, Ross Fields, David Ross, Gerald Twist and James Smith, committee members.

Comment about the college campus today was to the effect that the dance was one of the most enjoyable occasions of the year for the student body.

LONG ILLNESS PROVES FATAL TO MRS. MILLS

Santa Ana today mourned the death of Mrs. Elizabeth H. Mills, pioneer Orange county woman, who died yesterday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Theodore Winbiger. Mrs. Mills was 82 years old.

Funeral services will be held in the Winbiger Mission Funeral home at 2:30 p. m., tomorrow, with the Rev. Harry Hill, formerly pastor of the First Christian church in Orange and now of Redondo Beach, officiating. The clergyman will be assisted by the Rev. F. T. Porter, pastor of the First Christian church, Santa Ana. The body will be cremated.

Mrs. Winbiger and Mrs. Ernest F. Caldwell, of Orange, are the surviving children. Mrs. Mills was the widow of Dr. I. D. Mills, who passed away in Orange five years ago. A sister, Mrs. Eunice C. Horton, resides in Santa Ana, making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Winbiger.

Coming with her family from Missouri to El Modena in 1887, and two years later locating in Santa Ana, Mrs. Mills impressed her personality upon Santa Ana and was active in every department of civic affairs tending to the better things of life.

She was one of the campaigners in the early days of W. C. T. U. activity. She had served the county W. C. T. U. as president.

Mrs. Mills was a competent organizer and leader in club and educational work and results of her sincere work in the cause of temperance and education are reflected today in Santa Ana in many ways.

She was the founder of the Santa Ana Women's club, and it is a coincidence that her friends will pay their last respects to her on the twenty-seventh anniversary of the founding of that club.

Mrs. Mills was a Civil war nurse, having aided soldiers wounded in some of the most important engagements in that war. She was with the 88th Illinois regiment and was nursing at Ft. Donaldson when the war closed. She was an active member of the Women's Relief corps and held offices in the department, her last position being that of chaplain of the department of California and Nevada.

Paralysis was the cause of death, Mrs. Mills having been virtually helpless for approximately three months, but not confined to her bed until five days before her demise.

The sympathy of scores of friends in her affliction was expressed in many letters, calls as to her condition and flowers.

Mrs. Mills was born on March 28, 1844, in Ohio. Prior to her marriage to Mr. Mills, she was a school teacher.

SANTA ANA FOLK VISIT ICE PLANT

Santa Ana and Orange county were represented in the large group of Southern California residents who were guests, Saturday afternoon, at a barbecue given by the Federal Refrigerating company, at Maywood, in celebrating the first anniversary of completion of its big cold storage plant at that place.

The organization is headed by Dan and Tom Murphy, men well known in Southern California through their business activities for a period approximately 50 years.

Inspection of the six-story cold storage house and big ice manufacturing plant, was a feature of the afternoon.

Joseph McElroy, son-in-law of Mrs. Lottie Grouard, of this city, is superintendent of the ice plant.

Included in the guest list from Santa Ana were Elmer Schaniel, Franklin Grouard, Elmer Prince, Albert Aldige, Carl Edgar, Mrs. Lottie Grouard, Mrs. Carl Mock and daughter, Charlotte, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mechem, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fine and daughters, Mary, Margaret and Helen, and Horace Fine and daughters, Charlotte and Cleora.

Walter Wheaton, representative here at one time of the Salt Lake railroad, before it became a part of the Union Pacific system, is identified with an organization associated with a development program of the refrigerating company.

PEGGY HALL GETS FLYER'S LICENSE

Peggy Hall, intrepid Santa Ana aviatrix, today had acquired the full feathered rigging of a commercial flyer. The pretty girl who was the first woman to graduate from the flying school at Eddie Martin's airport, successfully has passed the tests of the National Aeronautical association and the Federation Aeronautic International and secured her license.

She made a high score in the tests, it was disclosed.

Johnny Martin, representative of the N. A. A. and F. A. I. and John Luxembourger, official observer, gave the tests.

As a licensed operator, Peggy Hall can compete in air meets and carry passengers. She expects before long to own an airplane.

Action on Farm Relief Speeded

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The house rules committee acted today to expedite farm relief action in the lower legislative body.

A special rule was reported, whereby debate on the McNary-Haugen bill would be limited to 12 hours.

Chairman Snell was doubtful as to the exact time of offering the rule, but indicated it would be next Monday and speedy action on the great problems of the farmer would follow.

HUNDREDS WILL ATTEND SANTA ANA C. E. MEET

Under the headline, "On to Santa Ana," the California Endeavor, official publication of the California Christian Endeavor union, in the February issue, carries a story by Glen D. Wight, state president, in which he tells of plans for the state Christian Endeavor convention, to be held here June 22 to 26.

"Santa Ana is one of Southern California's most beautiful cities," Wight states. "It is close to the ocean and not far from the mountains."

Wight goes on to say that this city "is known as a church community and we can look forward to a royal reception from the people of the city as well as the whole Orange county Christian Endeavor delegation."

The state union has elected two ex-state presidents as official "Santa Ana boosters." They will handle the pre-registration of the hundreds of delegates from all sections of the state. Charles Culver, of Los Angeles, has charge of Southern and central California and Emmet Chapman, San Francisco, of northern California.

Herbert P. Rankin, of Santa Ana, former state president, is general chairman of the convention.

A meeting of the Santa Ana executive committee has been called for Sunday afternoon, February 13, in the Y. M. C. A. lobby. Committee appointments will be made and plans for the convention discussed, Rankin said.

WESTMINSTER TO ERECT LIBRARY

WESTMINSTER, Jan. 31.—The first step toward the establishment here of a library and chamber of commerce building has been made. Considerable red tape was necessary before the land was available for building purposes and W. B. McCoy and Dr. Richard Foster have finally secured the required authorization from the former owner of what is now known as the town plaza, who stipulated in donating it that it be used for park purposes only. Then the matter had to be referred to the supervisors and the district attorney.

With permission to build, money is needed to put up the building and with the thought of informing the people to the need and advantages of a real library, the local P. T. A. has asked Miss Margaret Livingston, county librarian, to address members and friends at the regular meeting Wednesday afternoon in the school auditorium. Since it will take around $1600 to put up a suitable building, the combined activities of all organizations in the town will be required to raise this amount of money.

The church hall was erected two years ago at a cost of around $3000 and since then was furnished by

COOLIDGE FAVORS NEW ARMS MEET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Despite wars and rumors of wars, President Coolidge still hopes for another Washington Arms conference.

This was made plain in his address at the government business meeting, when Mr. Coolidge called upon the United States to lead the way toward international disarmament and harmony.

"As a nation, we are advocates of peace," the president declared. "Not only should we refrain from any act which might be construed as calling for competition in armament, but rather should we bend our every effort to eliminate such competition."

"We cannot and should not direct our own interests in this direction from the interests of other nations. Rather should we view the matter from the standpoint of the best interests of all nations."

Two Bandits Loot Bank of $10,000

OAKVILLE, Wn., Jan. 31.—Two unmasked bandits held up the Oakville State bank, shortly before noon, today, and escaped with $10,000.

A. W. Jones, cashier, who was alone, was locked in a vault while the money drawers were looted.

Just as the men were departing, Miss Leona Lemmon, assistant cashier, returned. One bandit held her in a corner with a gun while the other started an automobile outside.

Both men fled toward Aberdeen. Miss Lemmon notified the police and Marshal J. M. Williams started after the robbers immediately.

Maytag LEADS THE WORLD That's Why California Bought 3 SOLID TRAINLOADS in JANUARY

Previous trainloads of Maytag Washers did not begin to meet the California demand for the World's Wonder Washer. For January three solid trainloads of Maytags were required to meet the great demand for the world's leading household labor saving device. Three solid trainloads of Maytags was the largest single shipment of merchandise ever made to any one dealer in the world.

California housewives continue to clamor for the Maytag—the only washer with a cast-aluminum tub—that washes big tubfuls of clothes in 3 to 7 minutes—that does a whole washing in one short hour—that washes even collar and cuff edges without hand rubbing.

Phone—Use a Maytag next washday in your own home. There is no obligation to buy—except the one you owe yourself. Find out the reason for the record breaking shipments of Maytags purchased for California homes in January. Learn the reasons for Maytag World Leadership—why forty-nine percent of all washers sold are Maytags. See how much easier and shorter your washdays will be. See how much cleaner your clothes will be when washed in a Maytag. To know the Maytag you must try it in your own home—and if it doesn't sell itself—don't keep it.

COUNCIL CAN'T SEE WHERE TO GET MONEY FOR PAY INCREASES

Higher Salaries for Police And Firemen Are Sought In Petition to S. A. Board

PROPOSAL WILL BE CONSIDERED TONIGHT

Wage Raise Would Add Approximately $15,000 to Annual Expense, Belief

It is a trite old saying that "one cannot eat his cake and have it." And that is just about the situation the city council must confront in consideration of an increase in the salaries of police officers and members of the fire department, according to Frank L. Purinton, mayor.

The council tonight will give consideration to the matter of increasing the pay of the members of the two departments to place the wage schedule on a comparative basis with other cities of the Southland.

A petition, signed by 67 business men of the city, was filed with the council last Monday night asking that the matter of increased salaries be submitted at the April election to a vote of the taxpayers.

Whether the petitioners had in mind the possibility of the council being in position to submit also a proposition for a special tax rate to take care of the extra wage expense is not known.

It is a known fact, however, that such a proposition cannot be offered for a vote. Whatever increase should be voted, either by the council or by the voters, would have to be taken care of out of the general fund, according to Charles D. Swanner, city attorney, who pointed out that this city is operating under a state charter for cities of the fifth class. He emphasized the point that no provision is made for the voting of a special tax for salary expenses. He added that it is possible to do this in cities having city charters, if provision is made in the special charters.

Members of the city council virtually are agreed on the point that men who are serving the two departments should have better salaries, but they are unable to figure where the extra money would come from.

It is estimated roughly that to place salaries in the two departments on a plane comparative with those in some other communities would add salary expense approximating $15,000 annually.

"We believe that the increased salaries are justified and I am certain there would be no hesitancy in increasing the pay if council members could see clear-

"But Mr. Backs, you must realize that the loss of business must, of course, have its economic effect?"

"Yes, I probably will be able to economize a little more on sleep if we lose the Long Beach business."

"Why, Mr. Backs, what do you mean? Do you refer to the sleeping sickness?"

58 METERS ARE INSTALLED HERE DURING MONTH

Shows Population Gain of Nearly 250 During January, Says W. L. Deimling

In January, 1927, 58 new residential meters were installed in Santa Ana homes by the Southern California Edison company, which, figuring on a basis of four and one-quarter persons to each meter, would mean the population of Santa Ana had increased nearly 250 for the month, an examination of the figures supplied by W. L. Deimling, of Santa Ana, district manager for the electric company, showed.

The Santa Ana increase is the largest in Orange county, although every community in the county has shown an increase in population, Deimling indicated.

Attention was drawn to the number of new meters installed in Santa Ana by a report from Orange to the effect that "Since January 1 there have been 269 meters installed in Orange," which was taken to indicate that Orange had gained 807 persons in the month. Edison company officials pointed out that this number should have been given as the total number of meters for the year, beginning Jan. 1, 1926.

The Orange report was based on the decrease of idle meters, rather than upon the installation of new meters, and included meters installed in business houses, which, it was pointed out, would include a duplication, if that basis were to be accepted as a means of arriving at the approximate rate of gain in new residents. The fact that meters frequently are turned off for a family moving out of town or to another location, the same meter being turned on a few months later, also should be considered in accepting the Orange figures, Deimling indicated.

The correct method to arrive at a conclusion regarding new growth by means of meter installation would be secured through computing four and one-quarter persons for each new installation, the district manager said.

Modern Preaching Blamed for Wave Of Lawlessness

Modern day preaching, in a measure, is responsible for the spirit of lawlessness now rampant all over the nation, it was asserted by Evangelist W. Black, in his first sermon in a 10-day revival, opening last night in the tabernacle of the Four Square Gospel church.

Taking as his text, "As I Live, So Shall the Lord, Every Knee Shall Bow and Every Tongue Confess," Evangelist Brown based his sermon on the responsibility of the people to God and, in developing the subject, made the assertion with reference to present-day preaching.

The evangelist elaborated upon the point that the sin of forgetting God is the greatest sin. The services last night were of three hours' duration.

1927 MEET OF Y. M. C. A. SET FOR TUESDAY

With a program of exceptional interest, and with a large number of reservations already made, indications point to a notable event at the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. tomorrow evening, when the third annual banquet and general membership meeting of the association will be held.

The Orange county delegation was guided by an officer of Story Pictures, Inc., and was accompanied by Lillian Van Osada, secretary of the Balboa chamber of commerce, which, with the Southern Seas club, sponsored Miss Madeline Reed in the recent contest here.

LIBRARY HAS NEW BOOK ON EDISON'S LIFE

Everyone is interested in Thomas A. Edison, said Miss Jeannette McFadden, city librarian, in commenting on a number of new books recently received at the city library.

"For this reason we are anticipating a great demand for the book, 'Edison, the Man and His Work,' by George S. Bryan."

This book opens with an account of Edison's boyhood and the earlier years of his manhood, when he spent his time on experiments which seemed never to turn out as he had expected. As the interesting story progresses, one is given a picture of the circumstances as he perfected one after another of his many inventions.

In the book is a feature which will add to its popularity, Miss McFadden said. It is the list of questions asked in the famous Edison questionnaire.

"Early Philadelphia," by Horace Mather Lippincott, is another book which promises to be in great demand," Miss McFadden said. It deals with the people, life and progress of early Philadelphia and is written in the form of a fascinating story.

In this book are stories relating to the founding of various business houses, well known today, and to the founding of the University of Pennsylvania and other academies and schools. The author tells of the growth of the various arts, of the dance and of the theater and shows why the building of this City of Friends took into account the changes of the future more than any other of the communities of the early colonies.

The book has many illustrations picturing the forms of early architecture in Philadelphia.

Nowadays there are many who spend much time in tinkering with their automobile. These persons will be pleased with "Automobile Repairing Made Easy," by Victor Page, according to the librarian. Victor Page once was a mechanic and for many years he has made a specialty of the study of the mechanics of an automobile.

"Girls' Clubs," by Helen J. Ferris, is another new book in the library. In this book Miss Ferris tells, in a fascinating manner, of the proper way to organize a club, find the right kind of members, and then keep them interested in the club after the first enthusiasm. The author tells what part a club may play in the life of a community.

The following allotments also were made to continue operation of the three prison road camps engaged in state highway work until June 30, 1927:

Camp on Yosemite lateral, $93,000; camp in Del Norte county, $120,000; camp in Lake county, $28,000.

A check-up by the commission of disbursements of the highway commission for the preceding biennium, as compared with Governor Young's budget figures for the ensuing biennium, disclosed the fact that the governor has allowed the commission an increase of nearly $2,000,000 a year.

The highway commission received from all sources during the existing biennium a total of $1,457,956 for administration charges, $22,637,710 for maintenance and reconstruction and $31,292,535 for new construction and special items including receipts from federal aid. It's Here! Goodyear's new balloon tire for Fords and Chevrolets

Ever since Balloon Tires were introduced, Goodyear has been experimenting with tread designs to develop a tread which would match the Goodyear Balloon Carcass made of Supertwist Cord.

Eighty different treads have been tried within the past two years and hundreds of thousands of miles run on test cars.

Finally, out of these tests has come a new tire.

It is the famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread scientifically redesigned for Balloon Tire use.

The first big advantages of this new tread are traction and resistance to skidding.

The sharp-edged diamond-shaped blocks are placed in a semi-flat design so that they not only grip the road but they retain their usefulness longer than any non-skid tread ever before tried.

The second big advantage is long, slow, even tread wear as opposed to the "cupping" and uneven wear so noticeable on many other Balloon Tires.

And with these virtues of traction, non-skid and long wear this new tread is perfectly quiet and does not produce the vibration of many non-skid designs.

With the Goodyear Supertwist Carcass and the new Goodyear Balloon All-Weather Tread, you have the safest wearing, most trouble-free tire Goodyear has ever produced.

We have this new tire in the 29x4.40 size for Fords and Chevrolets. Come in—see it—you'll want it right away.

PROJECTS FOR HIGHWAY WORK GETS APPROVAL

missioner Baumgartner, in commenting on the proceedings, "this budget is based upon the expectation that the increase of 1 cent in the gasoline tax, as provided for in the Budget bill, now before the legislature, will become available to the amount of about $10,000,000 a year.

"Even with additional revenue of $10,000,000 a year," concluded Mr. Baumgartner, "I doubt if $32,000,000, apportioned by the Young budget, will be available for new construction during the ensuing two years; for the demand for maintenance and reconstruction are imperative and ever increasing."

On Tour of Inspection
After the meeting, the commissioners, accompanied by Chief Engineer Morton, spent two days in a tour of inspection about the bay region.

"Personally, I was appalled," said Mr. Baumgartner, "by the magnitude of the Bay region highway program. Much of it is co-operative work, participated in by San Francisco, Oakland and the other bay cities and counties, by improvement districts and by the state.

"The projects of greatest magnitude are designed to provide adequate approaches to San Francisco from the north and from the south. Southward, in addition to widening and straightening and strengthening the Peninsula boulevard down through Burlingame, Palo Alto and the other cities—mainly for interurban traffic—there is the new Bay shore industrial and through traffic boulevard, which, as its name indicates, runs along the bay shore from South San Francisco to Redwood City.

"Northward, a new entrance to San Francisco—or rather to San Sinito and thence across the bay to San Francisco—is planned for the Redwood highway. At present, it comes in by a circuitous, hilly route through a dozen or more small towns and cities, and is wholly inadequate for a metropolitan approach of a great interstate highway. Moreover, it is miles longer than the proposed new approach and besides is very hazardous, especially in foggy weather.

Will Be Costly Work
"These two projects will cost more millions of dollars than I like to think about.

"And then there's the northern part of the Redwood highway to complete, through Humboldt and Del Norte counties—a tremendous job in both time and money.

Chief Engineer Morton, of the highway commission, says that the only adequate metropolitan approach in the state is Telegraph road.

"Here in the south, while Los Angeles is better provided with approaches than San Francisco, there is much to be done to make such approaches adequate. And Southern California must have better connections with the Old Trails route at Las Vegas, Nev., or rather at the Nevada line, near Las Vegas. And of course, that Mecca-to-Blythe road must be built.

"Speaking of interstate connections, it will probably be a surprise to many to learn that there's more traffic between California and Oregon, on the Pacific highway and the Redwood highway, than on all the other inter-state routes put together."

Madeline Reed is sponsored by Lillian Van Gilder, the chamber of commerce, Southern Seas club, Balboa Times and Newport News. Guests of honor will be Messrs. W. B. Williams, F. E. Farnsworth, W. O. Packard, Frank Purinton and William Murphy, who served as the judges of the Personality contest, and featured players from the De Mille, First National and Metro-Goldwyn studios.

Arrangements are being made to secure "Brick" English and his orchestra to furnish music.

COLLEGIANS SCORE WITH JAZZ MUSIC

Act That Began Here Comes Back Home; Holt Stars In Feature Picture

The Yost Broadway theater has the distinction this week of bringing back one of the best jazz bands in America, "The California Collegians." The last time they played in Santa Ana was at the Yost theater several years ago, at which time Manager Yost brought down several of the Orpheum officials to hear them. As a consequence "The Collegians" received an Orpheum contract and played that circuit with great success.

Last spring they were chosen by Queen Marie to furnish music for her aboard the Leviathan. Following this they scored an immense triumph at the Kit-Kat club in London and again in Paris.

Coming back to the United States last fall they again toured the Orpheum, playing last week at the Hillstreet in Los Angeles.

Each of the California Collegians is an accomplished performer along individual lines as well as a versatile musician.

Another Orpheum act is on the same bill, Jack Merlin and company, assisted by Lois Evans. It is one of the best magic and card manipulation acts that we have seen at the Broadway theater recently.

The feature picture is a dramatization of Zane Grey's novel, "Man of the Forest," with Jack Holt, Georgia Hale, and El Brendel in the leading roles. It is a fascinating love story spun against the background of the far west, with some of the most spectacular scenic effects ever recorded by a camera.

Holt offers another splendid characterization in the title role, Georgia Hale, making her first appearance in an outdoor picture, enacts the heroine. A fine vein of comedy, developed by Earl Brendel is carried with deft directorial touch.

A delightful comedy, "Now You Tell One," completes the bill—Reviewer.

YOST THEATER

After waiting several years, since the production of "Madam X," in fact, this reviewer learned that patience is indeed a virtue, when he saw Pauline Frederick yesterday in a motion picture role that is actually commensurate with her unusual talents. "Devil's Island," the picture now showing at the Yost theater, is the ideal Pauline Frederick vehicle, a picture that perhaps no other screen actress could interpret so well, a drama that brings out every whit of the art of this splendid actress.

"Devil's Island," which was written for the star by an erstwhile luminary of the screen, Leah Baird, is a picture of life on the island of that name, the French prison settlement, which was the storm center of the Dreyfus case of a generation ago. Never before has a producer attempted to depict this most unique colony of the world, which has interested millions these many years.

financial straits and knowing no trade or business he comes to America where he becomes a butler to a wealthy Long Island family. The plot development holds one in suspense throughout the play, notwithstanding that many comedy situations occur as the story unfolds.

Donald Wilson, who has an enviable reputation for creating odd and quaint characters, will be seen as a Japanese servant, affording many laughs due to his ignorance of American customs. Two exceptionally fascinating roles fall to Fay Life and Eileen Robinson, who will be seen as sisters.

Cecil Drummond has an excellent part as a misunderstood husband, a role at wide variance with his performance as the husband in "Fair and Warmer." Two new members of the Alderman Players will be seen in "Thin Ice": Fred Harrington, who is now directing the company, and Billy Evans, perhaps one of the best known and most popular character actors on the Pacific coast.

"Thin Ice" is one of those plays that everybody likes, having been one of the cleverest comedies produced on the New York stage during the past season. With a play of charm, thoroughly enjoyable, wholesome and a cracking good comedy.

"Devil's Island," a special feature picture starring Pauline Frederick will be the screen attraction.

MURPHY'S COMEDIANS
"The Call of the Woods," a four-act romance of the Canadian northwest, opened last night at Murphy's theater at Orana. The play requires four different sets of scenery to fit the action of the story.

The production is well staged and well cast with C. William Booth and Miss Martha Gibbs in the leading roles. Jimmie Malone and Herbert Shelley follow the principal comedy parts, George Mathison and Miss Austa Pierce in the character parts, James Worsley again doing the "heavy" and Miss Murphy being the young girl.

mentioned the "battleships landing," that he really meant the marine craft, the thought not being subject to any ulterior interpretation.

An article in a Long Beach paper says that prospective brides and bridegrooms of that city trek to Santa Ana to avoid the Los Angeles traffic and because Santa Ana is nearer than Los Angeles.

But, as for Joseph Backs and his marriage license chief, Miss Blanche Hill, the geographical distinction is a distant question.

Whether the governing body will decide the question of increased pay or allow the voters to express themselves was an open question today. It was pointed out by Purinton that the members had not as yet discussed the proposition.

ter understanding of one another, for the promotion of peace.

'Supreme Opportunity'
The subject announced for the address by Holmes is "The Supreme Opportunity of Our Generation," this being the same subject that he is discussing before a meeting of the Pacific Coast Conference on Religion, which meets in Los Angeles this week.

Col. M. B. Wellington has been selected by President O. H. Barr to act as toastmaster for the meeting. Music by the Y. M. C. A. Chorists, in addition to other selections, will present the new Santa Ana song, "Santa Ana, the Eden of the World," which has been especially arranged as a four-part song for them. "The Bells of St. Mary's," by Emmet Adams, "Lassie of Mine," by Wall, and "Memories," by Van Alstyne, are other numbers.

Two squads of gymnasts, under direction of R. V. Russek, physical director of the association, will present acts indicating the quality of training given at the "Y" gymnasium. One of these squads, made up of small boys, will present tumbling and posture work, while the other group, made up of men, will entertain the guests with more difficult acts.

Representatives of the boys' clubs, dressed in their regalia, will give a brief statement of their particular activities in the association.

Minimize Business
Matters of business called reports, and the like, will be put in the background, and the way cleared for a lively and thoroughly enjoyable evening. Secretary Ralph C. Smedley announced.

Because of the large number of reservations already on file, persons intending to attend the dinner are asked to telephone reservations to the association office. Both men and women are invited, and all who are interested, whether members of the association or not, are welcome to attend. It was explained at the association offices.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Birthday Box In Church Is Robbed

Thieves robbed the "birthday box" of the Methodist Episcopal church, Parton street and Richmond avenue, Saturday night, after gaining entrance to the church by climbing to the roof and down the church belfry, according to a report filed with city police.

Only a few dollars was in the contribution box, it was said. Locks were forced off several closet doors by the thieves but nothing else was reported taken.

PASTOR TELLS OF CHINA CONDITIONS

The Rev. Allan Hunter, pastor of the Hollywood Congregational church, spoke last night in the First Reformed Presbyterian church here on "China." The Rev. Mr. Hunter recently spent considerable time in China, studying conditions while acting as students' secretary from this country.

He told of the living conditions of the people there and of our attitude toward them. "With our left hand we send them the Gospel and with our right we crush them for profit," he said. According to the Rev. Mr. Hunter, the people of China desire only to be treated as equals, which they are, and there is a possibility that they will be able later to set the example of peace to the western powers.

The Young People's society of the church have taken, for mission study, the book by Basil Matthews, "Young Islam on Trek."

SCOUTMASTER COURSE WILL OPEN TONIGHT

The annual training course for scoutmasters and committee members of the Orange county Boy Scout organization will begin tonight, at the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. The meeting will open with dinner, at 6:30.

With more than 50 men signed up from all over the county for the first session, county scout officers are expecting one of the most successful courses ever held in Orange county. The course will continue for six consecutive Monday nights.

It is expected that many new men will be available for new troops at the conclusion of the course. Anyone interested in boys' work is welcome to attend the course and will not in any way be obligated to take a scout troop by thus attending.

The first meeting will be given over to the fundamentals of the program, the organization of patrols and instruction to committee men on their responsibilities and duties.

Effects of Dry Act Are Told at W. C. T. U. Session

ANAHEIM, Jan. 31.—Business men of the city spoke at the W. C. T. U. field day meeting in the Evangelical church today on the topic of prohibition and its effects on the nation. H. A. Hawley, president of the Southern Counties Bank, told of the opinions which he, as a banker, has formed on the subject. George Garman, attorney; T. R. Nelson, merchant; Floyd McCracken, newspaperman; the Rev. G. G. Schmidt and Warren L. Strickland, educator, each talked on the same subject from the point of view of the profession of which he is a member.

The afternoon session was devoted to the hearing of talks from state officers regarding the raising of a fund of $600,000 for the erection of homes for elderly women in Los Angeles and for the endowment of the projected home and other homes already supported by the union.

An entertainment in the First Christian church concluded the meeting.

DIES OF INJURIES

REGRETS THAT GRAND JURY IGNORED WALNUT INDUSTRY

Editor Register: I hate to air my private affairs, but after spending several evenings going over my walnut crop returns for current year, instead of being in debt to Uncle Sam, I find that this esteemed gentleman owes me just $13.13, and if any optimistic bill collector wants to go 50-50 on this considerable sized amount, he has got the job. Of course, I don't want to appear selfish, but as one lop-eared farmer to the county at large, I want to know if the walnut industry was so insignificant as to escape the attention of the grand jury. If it has been depreciated to this extent, I hope I will not appear impertinent when I suggest that, without doubt it would have been possible to have requisitioned a microscope of sufficient horsepower to discern that there is still considerable acreage of this apparently not very well known delicacy still trying to show some sign of life. I say life advisedly, in speaking of my own place. I think my ranch has been about as well advertised as any in the county, but shucks, I was in hopes that at least one of the grandjurymen would drop out my way. I will admit that the citrus industry is a pretty husky infant, and the pesky scabbug is elusive and harder to trap than the coddling moth, but, honey smoke, boys, if we don't look out we will have an inspector at every orange tree, with a can of cyanide in one hand and a squirt ter up with our supervisor—I mean about getting these "comical" spray companies to put up a forfeit in case their dope wrecked a man's investment. Well now I have been betting on this present board of supervisors, but when I spoke my little piece, Mr. Schumacher said that we walnut men that used that stuff would have to take our chances. Well sir, William, I think that was a pretty hard blow. It would have wrecked any ordinary garden variety of a farmer, but I am quite used to getting stung by my bees and a little old mosquito bite like that skidded off my old hide like a flivver on a wet pavement. The walnut grower as a rule, tries just as hard to keep out of jail, and pay his taxes as his big brother, the citrus grower. No matter if he is poor, he is entitled to his ratio of attention.

We are told by the horticultural commissioner that the law compels the walnut grower to spray when the coddling moth is prevalent, and he read the law to me; it's there all right. All of this stuff that is sold us for spraying is so unreliable that Mr. Brock himself, says it should be analyzed before using, but that it would take a deputy's time and county money to do so, and he suggests that next season to all that are going to use it that they be sure and have it analyzed.

Mr. Schumacher, do you think that it is right for the walnut grower to go to the expense and trouble to do this—a job that could be done at the factory—when the citrus grower is to receive thousands of dollars from the county funds to help him control the pests that worry him and infest his trees? No, I want to say that is not fair, and I want to say that I have the greatest of confidence in you, and I am writing this so that the board of supervisors, the county at large and last but not least, the members of the grand jury may have a few facts brought to their attention that they have for some reason overlooked. The very fact that a group of 19 men and women can go through the ordeal of a grand jury experience and come out alive, places them away above the average in mentality and diplomacy. I congratulate them heartily on practically all of their other conclusions.

CHARLES F. HAVENS.

Here worship is a peculiar thing to understand. Here is Frank Moore, the young man who did not advance Rogers Hornsby's matter of $70,075. He has made such a claim against the National league star. Moore says he likes to "pal" around with Hornsby but not at such a price.

BELIEVES GRAND JURY RIGHT IN ASKING ADDITIONAL AID

Editor Register—Being a corn grower in Iowa as well as an orange grower in California, I read with considerable interest your editorial on the report of the grand jury, in The Register, January 28th. You stated in this article that you were not sold on some of the recommendations of the grand jury, particularly the one regarding the county horticultural commissioner's office. You, possibly, have not made a careful study of the duties of the horticultural commissioner. If you will go over some of their reports and over the laws which they have to enforce, I am sure that you will be in sympathy with the requests for more help to carry out the work in this county.

The next editorial following the one on the report of the grand jury pointed out the deplorable condition in the middle west, where the European corn borer has been discovered, and the enormous opposition made necessary to carry out the quarantine and investigation work, seeking a control for this newly introduced foreign pest.

I am afraid, Mr. Editor, that you have failed to associate the condition pointed out in the second editorial with the statements made in your article on the report of the grand jury. You know that it is the duty of the horticultural commissioner to protect in every possible way the agriculturists of this county, by preventing the introduction of new and dangerous insect pests and plant diseases. This is the basis upon which the office was created and is the foundation of all the work of the state department of agriculture.

Do you know that the present federal quarantine act was based upon the early work done in this state along plant quarantine lines? If you will study the report of Mr. Frederick Maskew on the early quarantine work in this state on phylloxera, codling moth, cottony cushion and purple scale, and numerous other pests which arouse the interest of growers and cause them to endeavor to control these newly introduced pests and to take steps to prevent the further introduction of foreign pests, you will learn the necessity of devoting much attention to this line of work.

In glancing over the list of pests that are responsible for the major control operations in this state, we find that practically all of them have been introduced; in fact, the common insect pests of economic importance, something over 1000 have been introduced from foreign countries. Had we at that time had a knowledge of some of these insects, no doubt proper quarantine orders would have been promulgated to prevent their introduction.

In 1912, the plant quarantine act, passed by congress, created the federal horticultural board and placed in their hands the authority to prevent further introductions of insect pests and plant diseases which would add to the cost of producing agricultural products.

Only a week or so ago, in the baggage of a passenger coming into this state, was found live Mediterranean fruit fly. Should this pest ever become firmly established in the fruit growing sections of California, it would mean a cost to our agriculturists of several times the amount expended for the control of European corn borer in the middle west.

I am wondering if you have ever studied the enormous cost to Florida to eradicate citrus canker. I am wondering if you have taken into consideration the fact that this same dreaded disease has been kept out of California through the proper enforcement of our quarantine laws. The horticultural commissioner's office is only a cog in the wheel to carry out the quarantine orders and to stay the spread of those pests that have become established here.

Do you know that only a few years ago a new pest was introduced into this state which was later known as Citrophilus mealy bug? This insect has now spread over a large percentage of the citrus growing sections of California, and while biological control has been used and is much less expensive than artificial control, there is now expended annually from $50,000 to $75,000 for the control of this insect.

The acreage of Citrophilus mealy bug in this county is larger than that of the rest of the state. For the control of this pest, the growers last year were willing to make available for this purpose something like $52,000. This pest will, no doubt, continue to spread because our citrus acreage is a solid block. It has cost for the production of the beneficial insects used for the control of this pest about one cent per insect; last year, in this county, the cost of production was reduced to less than one-half cent. An effort has been made to liberate ten of these insects per tree and to cover the acreage we now have, it would require 17,000,000 Cryptolaeus.

It is necessary for the horticultural inspectors to examine all incoming plant products, it is necessary for them to inspect orchards and to serve abatement notices upon owners, and they must inspect a large acreage for rodents and see that owners are using the most up-to-date methods for the control of these pests. They must also see that noxious weeds are eradicated. For instance, in this county at the present time we have only a slight infestation of puncture vine, which is one of the most troublesome of the noxious weeds in this state. To control or eradicate this particular weed means a great deal to this county. If you will study some of the problems that are being experienced in other counties where no effort has been made to stay the spread or eradicate this weed, I am sure that you will say that if all of the money expended by that office was used for the control of puncture vine, it would be in the right direction and money well spent.

I am wondering if you have taken into consideration that when emergencies arise, such as the foot and mouth disease and the freeze of 1925, it is necessary to employ additional help. I believe that you will admit that we obtained almost as much money for the 1925 crop, with one-third of it destroyed by frost, as was obtained the previous year. Had this frosty fruit been allowed to find its way into the markets, not only would our prices have slumped, but our frozen fruit, as well as the good fruit, would have been only a drug on the market, and our brands would have been, in many instances, brought into such disrepute that the buyers would have sought fruit from other sections.

Standardization laws are devised to protect the consumer and also the markets for the producer. It is necessary for the horticultural commissioner's office to inspect the vegetables shipped from this county, and last year we had in the neighborhood of 4000 acres of tomatoes alone. There are certain standards established by the Fruit and Vegetable Standardization Act and it requires considerable time to inspect and follow up this work; in fact, it is necessary each season to cause many shipments to be reconditioned.

Now, summing up the work of that department, established by the state; they have some work to do under federal quarantine regulations; they must carry out the enforcement of the law requiring growers to control and eradicate insect pests, plant diseases, weeds and rodents, and they must enforce the standardization law as it applies to citrus, walnuts, avocados, tomatoes, cauliflower, berries, lettuce and other fruits and vegetables produced and sold in this county.

I feel that you have failed to study the actual needs of that department. The office is in dire need of a few extra men at certain seasons of the year, and they have asked that the law provide for these extra men so that they may be used if needed. You, no doubt, understand that it costs in the neighborhood of a million dollars a year to control the insect pests that have been introduced in this county.

Now, Mr. Editor, wouldn't it be better to spend the next million dollars to prevent the introduction of citrus canker, white fly, Mediterranean fruit fly, Mexican orange maggot, Japanese beetle, alfalfa weevil, and sweet potato weevil, any of which, no doubt, would add to our present cost of control?

Do you know that the men employed by that office must pass an examination given by the state department of agriculture? Do you know that in order to pass this examination, a man must have had four years' technical agricultural training plus some practical experience, or he must have spent sufficient time in practical work together with technical reading so as to be able to name our common insect pests and plant diseases and give the chemicals for their control and to know how to apply them? Do you know that these men have to start in the work at $5 per day? Do you know that it has been very hard to keep men qualified to fill these positions at the present salaries available for this purpose? Do you know that during foot and mouth disease and the frozen orange season, the men, in order to carry out the law, were forced to work from 12 to 16 hours per day, and these men could not be allowed any additional pay for their extra time?

Only last season, the Walnut Growers' association employed one of the men engaged in this work; one of the large cyanide manufacturing corporations employed another; an Orange county fumigation concern employed another at almost double the salary he had been receiving, and one found that he was losing money, by trying to carry on his ranch work through employed labor and decided to give up this work.

Isn't it true that agriculture is one of the biggest industries in this county? Isn't it true that insect pests and plant diseases are responsible for a very large toll and that the agriculturists of this county should in every possible way try to prevent any additions to our present costs in the way of production? The costs of production are eventually passed on to the consumer, and when the control of insects cuts down the amount of a given product produced or if it forces the grower to expend large sums for control, society, as a whole, must bear the bill.

Had proper laws been passed in the early history of this state and sufficient funds been made available to enforce them, no doubt today our pest control bill would be much less than it is. I think if you will give this matter a little study, you will see that these extra men are necessary, and that in order to maintain that department, the salaries must be on a par with those paid in other sections. If it is necessary for the horticultural commissioner to convince every city man of his needs, no doubt he will have a hard time to obtain funds for his work. I know, however, that you are interested in the welfare of the entire county and you know that Orange county now has an acreage of citrus larger than any other county in the state, except Los Angeles. You also know that insect pests find a preferred host in this tree as well as the fruit and that there are numerous other insects and diseases waiting to find a foothold in our county. Insect pests in the United States cause a loss in excess of two billion dollars annually.

In conclusion, I would like to ask if you aren't willing to accept the verdict of the agriculturists of this county as to what work is important and what funds should be made available to carry out the duties of that office. If the doctors and lawyers are the people who should pass upon the needs of the horticultural office, then whose interest are they supposed to protect?

The grand jury made a very careful investigation of that office through a selected committee and the committee made certain recommendations to the grand jury. Therefore, any member who failed to agree with the final recommendations should have made known his opposition at the time this matter was discussed and passed upon and not after a final settlement of this proposition by that body.

I trust, Mr. Editor, that you will study agricultural needs in this county and base your opinion upon facts rather than upon hearsay. We need your co-operation in order to enforce the laws placed in our statute books. You will recall that Lincoln has said, "With public sentiment nothing can fail, without it nothing can succeed; consequently, he who creates public sentiment goes deeper than he who makes statutes or pronounces decisions, because he makes statutes and decisions possible or impossible to be executed." Therefore, a police officer such as the horticultural department is in the enforcement of the various acts upon the statute books, is bound to make some enemies and your help will convince the general public that they must live up to the regulations within their own county and protect the clean areas as they expect the state authorities and federal authorities to protect our interests against importations from other states and foreign countries. In other words, we must show that we believe in quarantine laws and in pest control within our own county before we can ask the state and federal authorities to protect our interests. So, I trust that after a more careful consideration of the matter which you brought to the attention of the general public, you will be willing to correct the wrong impression your article seems to have created.

REALTY SALES AT COSTA MESA TOTAL $50,000

COSTA MESA, Jan. 31.—Real estate activity in this city during the past few weeks has broken all records, according to a survey. Many Huntington Beach people have purchased home sites in Costa Mesa and many new buildings are soon to start up, according to reports.

Property valued at more than $50,000 has changed hands during the past few weeks. August Bendlin, well-to-do Costa Mesa man, who a few weeks ago purchased a five-acre tract on Santa Ana avenue between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, has subdivided the property and during the past few days has sold many lots in the district, according to reports. The acreage was purchased from H. Cardoza Sloan of Newport Beach. The consideration was not made known.

S. A. Casad, prominent Huntington Beach man, recently purchased a five-acre tract on the corner of Irvine and Seventeenth streets from F. C. Farrow of Long Beach. Casad will build in the near future and make his home here. He has considerable acreage in the Costa Mesa district and has been engaged in raising flower bulbs for several years.

Among the persons who have purchased homesites in Costa Mesa during the past few weeks are Coy E. Watts, Balboa; Leonard Greshner, Balboa; Nick E. Suttora, Newport Beach fish dealer; LeRoy P. Anderson and Christopher B. Diehl, Costa Mesa attorneys; Harvey J. Crane, Balboa painting contractor; Fred E. Urish, Balboa; Herbert N. Wessling, Balboa fish dealer; O. M. Brown, Balboa; Franklin Sparrow, Costa Mesa; Otis E. Pierson, Costa Mesa; Gus B. Tampus, Balboa cafe owner; Dee W. Whitney, Balboa hotel man; A. J. Flowerday, Huntington Beach oil worker; Foy E. Graves, Costa Mesa contractor; Susie L. Earle, 615 North Van Ness street, Santa Ana; Ernest A. Buttram, superintendent of the Newport Mesa irrigation district, and David H. Elmer, Costa Mesa service station owner.

The lots are all located within a radius of a half mile of the grammar school.

Another real estate transaction of interest was the sale this week by E. B. "Dick" Whitson, Balboa postmaster, of his home on Newport Heights. Whitson sold the property so that he could be nearer his work at Balboa. He intends to purchase a home at Balboa. The amount received for the property was not revealed.

NEW H. B. AREA TO BE TESTED BY DRILLERS

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 31.—Extensive leasing half a mile northeast of the old Huntington Beach oil field makes it appear highly probable that within the next few months a drilling campaign may be launched there for the purpose of testing out the theory that an entirely new oil field exists there.

Last year Huntington Beach developed a field on the west side, toward the ocean—an area which went to a production peak of 10,000 barrels daily. Just now oil operators are testing the district between the easterly limits of the west end field and the far east side of the community. Now the interest has swung to the northeast.

Within the last two weeks at least two companies have picked up approximately 150 acres in leases there, mostly in five-acre tracts. The land was subdivided in five-acre blocks some years ago. The leasing is being done in the district lying just east from the corner of Main and Hampshire streets. This is a mile and a quarter northeast of the business district of Huntington Beach, on the north half of Section 36.

The area is perhaps a mile and a half southwest of the location where the Shell company not long ago drilled its Von Schiltz test hole, which proved to be dry. In the area where the leasing is going on there are said to be abundant indications of faulting, and these lead geologists to believe that a new oil field perhaps exists there.

57 CARS OF NAVELS ARE SENT EAST BY NORTHERN ORANGE COUNTY EXCHANGE

$790 COLLECTED BY JUDGE LANDELL

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Jan. 31.—A total of $790 was collected in traffic fines by Judge Jack Landell from 27 violators Friday. The majority of the offenders were speeders.

Wilbur Woodside, 18, a recent arrival from Kansas, escaped with a $5 fine when he appeared before Landell on a charge of speeding and not having a driver's license. Woodside explained that he had just landed his first job, that of selling cookies, and that he was in a hurry to get to San Diego to call on customers.

A bench warrant was issued by Judge Landell for T. W. Rutherford of Los Angeles for failure to appear to answer a speeding charge. Rutherford was arrested nine days ago while taking his employment Nelson Story Hogan and Michael P. Brown, both of Los Angeles, to Tia Juana.

Brown will appear next Friday to answer to an assault charge preferred by Hogan following an argument over who should pay a meal bill.

DIP IN SEAL BEACH SAND DISCOVERED

SEAL BEACH, Jan. 31.—One of the most interesting developments in the Seal Beach field since it was discovered, was the drilling of the Standard Oil company's San Gabriel No. 1 well last week, with the resulting discovery of the fact that the Bixby zone at that point has an apparent thickness of less than 10 feet, besides being about 150 feet deeper than the same zone on the Associated Oil company's Bryant lease.

The development is rather a negative one, but is the first line the Seal Beach operators have had on the extent of the field since it was brought in. The Associated Bryant No. 1 found the Bixby zone higher than any other well in the field, and the San Gabriel finding it at 480 feet, which is 150 feet deeper than the Bryant No. 1, and only a few feet thick at that, is taken as an indication that the zone probably runs out before it gets to the Naples lease, which the Petroleum Securities company is drilling on the northwest end of the structure.

The projection of the degree of dip indicated by a correlation of the Bryant and San Gabriel wells suggests that the Naples well may get the formation at about 470 feet, but being only 10 feet thick at the San Gabriel No. 1, the sand probably will be gone by the time the formation dips to the Naples property.

This leaves the Naples well with the probability that the Selover zone will be its first chance for production. The Marland Oil company got the Selover zone at about 470 feet, and geologists figure that the Naples well is likely to get it at about 490 feet. Whether it will be productive in that area is a question which will not be answered until Petroleum Securities drills a few hundred feet deeper.

The Marland Oil company brought in another well on its Selover lease during the week, getting an initial production of about 2400 barrels per day of clean oil. This company also brought in its Bixby No. 4, which had difficulty with bottom water, and late Saturday the well was flowing by heads, at the rate of about 1000 barrels per day, but it was not definitely known whether it had cleared up.

THREE STORY MESA BUILDING IS PROJECTED

COSTA MESA, Jan. 31.—A new three-story business building is to be constructed here in the near future by Frank Chapman, wealthy Costa Mesa sportsman. The building is to be erected on property purchased last week by Chapman, just north of the Slothower garage.

A record for business property was set when Chapman purchased the 50-foot frontage on Newport boulevard for a consideration of $7000. The price amounted to $140 a front foot. The lot is 50 by 187½ feet. F. H. Rheme was the former owner.

Chapman is well known through Orange county. He is a member of the Santa Ana country club and lives in Costa Mesa, moving here recently from Santa Ana. The Old Time Family Doctor

In the rush of so called modern methods of living, the traditions of the Old Time Family Doctor have been very largely lost sight of. The Doctor of your grandfather's day was always looked to as one of the foremost men of the community. He was next to the minister or priest in the minds and hearts of his people.

His knowledge was largely obtained through study by lamp light in his own home. The diseases in his day were classified in a comparatively small group, but honored as he was in his day, his methods would not endure today.

The physician of today who is qualified to advise, counsel and serve you must be one who is thoroughly informed on many phases of modern medicine and science. He frequently attends special clinics. He devotes much time to special research and observation work. He is qualified to do much more than the Old-Time Family Doctor.

Naturally, it costs the physician a great deal of money to keep abreast of the times in his profession. It follows that he must make his collections fairly promptly. It is usually true that the more attention a physician gives to study and research, the less attention he gives to making collections.

Statistics prove that modern medical science has materially lengthened the span of life. Show your appreciation of the very great service the medical profession is performing for humanity by paying your physician's bills when they are due.

EVERYTHING IN READINESS FOR ORANGE SHOW

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 31.—With the 17th National Orange show at San Bernardino opening in about a fortnight—running from February 17 to 27—everything is ready for the throngs of visitors. Every inch of space has been taken, including rack display space, feature exhibit reservations, and booth space in the big industrial and auto show departments. The program has been perfected. During the next two weeks, the permanent home of the show will be a beehive of activity as exhibits are installed, then California's greatest midwinter exposition will be on.

Such was the summary of preparations made here today by officials of the show. They added that never before in the history of the show have the wheels of preparation moved more swiftly; that never before has such general widespread interest obtained in the show throughout the Southland.

"We anticipate a real record-breaking attendance," said Arthur J. Brown, show president, "even in excess of the quarter-million visitors who passed through the gates last year."

Among the 18 beautiful feature exhibits, built of oranges and citrus fruits of various kinds, the following organizations and communities have already designed, built or are installing their exhibits:

Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Riverside, Fontana, Pasadena Tournament of Roses association, Redlands, Ontario, Elephant Orchards, Hemet-San Jacinto, Pomona, Pacific Electric Railway company, Santa Monica, Orange county, Colton, Corona, San Diego and Mutual Orange distributors.

Announcement is made that the musical programs of the famous Tipica orchestra, from Mexico City, will be augmented by programs given by the Long Beach and Santa Monica bands, and that a diversified program of entertainment in general has been arranged for the 10-day show.

H. S. ORCHESTRA WILL BE HEARD AT S. A. DRAMA

When the "first nighters" assemble tomorrow night at the Temple theater for the opening presentation of "Enter Madame," Santa Ana Community Players' first play of the winter, they will have, in addition to the entertainment offered by the amusing comedy drama itself, the pleasure of hearing a group of talented members of the high school orchestra, who will play an overture and also will play between acts, according to a statement made today by George Gerwing, director of the Players' organization.

"Music has always played a prominent part in Community Plays, showing how closely interrelated are the different entertainment and cultural affairs of the city," declared Gerwing. He then recalled previous successes of the Players' organization, and how talented musicians of the city had aided, either as individuals or as members of some companion organization, such as Orange County Choral union or, as will be the case in the forthcoming event, the high school.

The orchestra will be represented by about 10 of its members, and to add to the interest, it will play two numbers composed by the director, S. J. Mustel, orchestra supervisor in the city schools. These numbers are "Victory" and "Sunnyland Waltz." The music will be a feature of each of the four nights' performance.

Rehearsals of "Enter Madame" have been of nightly occurrence at the Temple theater for the last week. The Players were given a breathing spell yesterday and were expected to appear tonight for the dress rehearsal, completely refreshed and letter-perfect in their parts.

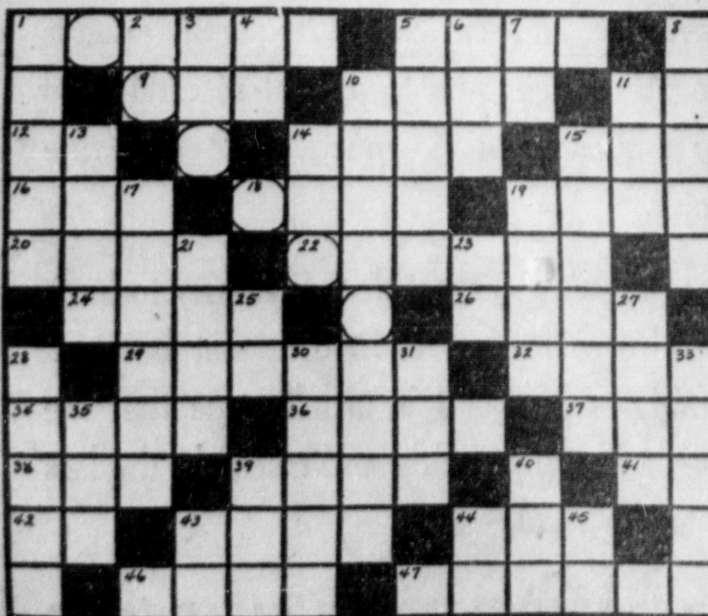

Saturday night's rehearsal was with complete scenery and properties and these will be in place again tonight, and in every respect, the director plans to have the dress rehearsal exactly as it will be tomorrow night for the first performance.

Tickets for "Enter Madame" have been on sale for the last week at the Santa Ana book store, and the demand for them has been quite flattering to the Players in general and Gerwing and his selected cast, in particular. Indications are that there will be an excellent crowd to greet the rise of the curtain each night, although good seats may still be obtained for each performance. The play will be given tomorrow, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

JACK LOCKWILL AT ROCKLAKE ACADEMY

BY GILBERT PATTEN

Although he secretly disliked McNally, Willie Darling stood in awe of him. "He's got a damned dirty temper. Lockwill," said Willie, "and he looked as though he wanted to kill you when you walked off with my sister." A knock was heard at the door, and Willie answered it. As the door was opened, a band of masked boys burst in and seized Jack.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Nathan Forrest

Sketches By Kroesen
Synopsis By Braucher

Chickamauga's page, bitter for the north, was written, and Rosecrans' army retreated toward Chattanooga. Forrest chafed, longing to pursue, but Bragg held him back. Forrest was loud in his criticism of Bragg's inaction. Bragg, stern West Pointer, reiterated by relieving Forrest of his command.

The flood of Forrest's wrath raged high. In Bragg's tent at Chickamauga he faced the general. The dam of military law was broken.

The torrent of wounds, swelling in Forrest's soul since Shiloh, rushed out in a boiling river about the ears of Bragg.

"You robbed me of my command in Kentucky," his voice rang out, "and gave it to men I armed and equipped. You drove me into west Tennessee, half armed. Now you take these men from me. You have played the part of a damned scoundrel. Cross my path again at the peril of your life." He wheeled and left. And Jefferson Davis made him a major-general.

THE TINYMITES
BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Of course the Tinymites were proud. That sort of feeling is allowed when you have done a job worth while and finished it complete. They looked upon the boat they'd made. Then Carpy said, "I'm not afraid to sail out on the seas with this. I think 'twill be a treat."

The Eskimo, I guess, felt bad to know that all these friends he'd had were just about to leave him, and he begged that they return. "Come back and see me, some bright day. You're always welcome out this way," said he, "so when you're visiting, please let me have my turn."

"You bet we will," wee Clowny said, and then he shook his little head. "But I don't know," he added. "It's a dangerous place for me. I've had too many spills and such, and I don't care for spills much. I've fallen on the ice so much I'm sore as I can be."

Then Scouty shouted, "Don't mind him. When we come back he'll be in trim, and ready for another run of crazy falls and rides. "And then he turned to all the bunch and told them that he had a hunch they'd better try their new boat just "to see how well she glides."

The boat was dragged down to the shore and with a splash and mighty roar, "Twas pushed out in the water. Then they let their anchor drop. "Hurrah," said Carpy, with a smile, "I guess this boat of ours is style. We're safe as safe can be in it, if it just stays on top."

A farewell message then was roared and all the Tines climbed aboard. "Good luck and pleasant journey," said their friend the Eskimo. "The little fellows offered thanks and then they left the icy hands. In stories, still to come, you find where they are going to go."

Queer Quirks of
- NATURE -

BELOVED BY GODS, SAYS ANCIENT LEGEND

Kingfishers

BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n.
These saucy little kingfishers look rather contented.

When Daddy Kingfisher and his good wife first began to think wistfully of a little nest and some bright-eyed babies, they hunted long enough for just the right sand or gravel bank.

Finally when they had selected a perpendicular bank that appealed to them, they burrowed into it horizontally four to six feet a sleeping apartment.

At the end of the nesting burrow they scratched out a round little, bowl-like hollow, and to line this nest and make a cradle for their expected babies, they disgorged countless fishbones, and on these undigested fish bones, the little mother deposited her pearly white eggs, surprisingly large in comparison with her size. Some times six eggs were laid, some ambitious mothers even laying as many as nine. The kingfishers usually start their housekeeping in May and in about two weeks their hearts are gladdened by the arrival of their family. These babies have an enormous appetite and the parents have to go fishing early and late.

It is interesting to watch a kingfisher scanning the water as it poises above it. Suddenly it darts head foremost out of sight. An instant later it appears rumpantly with a fat, giggling minnow in its beak, which it bears away to its nestlings.

Kingfishers winter from Virginia and Kentucky to South America, but return north in the latter part of February. In appearance they are so distinctive as to be easily recognized.

From ancient times comes a pretty myth to which we owe our word "halcyon" and the expression "halcyon days."

BEAUTY CHATS

NICELY SHAPED FINGERNAILS

Hands that are not naturally slender and graceful can be made so by shaping the nails nicely. If you want length, file the nails as long as you can—within reason. I've added "within reason" because the exaggerated nails some girls have nowadays add nothing to the apparent length of the fingers, they merely make them look like claws.

File each nail to a slightly rounded point, letting the point come out a little beyond the natural end of the finger. If you are a typist or a pianist or do any work using your fingers, you'll have to sacrifice length or go about with constantly breaking nails. Otherwise let your sense of good taste show you how long your nails can be, and still look attractive.

If you can't have the nails too long, either because you use your hands hard in working or because the nails are brittle and break easily, you can get something of the long effect by cutting the two corners of each nail well back into the skin. You must cut the corners anyway, to avoid hangnails. Cut back as far as you can, and the nail will look longer than it is. This is a good trick for short fingered hands.

Never make the point of the nail sharp. From the corners to the tip, make an attractive curve, roughly like the curve at the end of the nail, where it grows from the finger. If you do this, you acquire the "almond" shape which is considered the most beautiful shape now. Another thing is, never press down into the skin with the file when you are cleaning under the nails, this emphasizes the white part of each nail more strongly, but tends to make a straight white line, instead of a curved one. Be as gentle as possible when you clean the nails.

The nails should be curved all over—curved where they grow from the finger, the "moon" another curve, curved at the points, curved deeply into the fingers at either side of each nail.

Classics
vs. Sex

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
Publishers acknowledge that there would be little or no sale for classic literature if they did not use every trick known to the trade to promote their sales.

The word "classic" is anathema to many people. Almost the worst thing possible for the success of any book past or present is to let it be known that it is a classic. They say that daughter, mother and grandmother, to say nothing of the male side of the family, are feeding avidly on the sex novel. There is a difference between a sex novel and the purer sex stories. As far as that goes, all love stories are sex stories. It is a matter of degree.

It is not the erotic sex novel, however, that is robbing the classic. It is the popular novels of today that cover a wide range of problems and people. They are clever and brilliant! And many of them are—classics! There are more writers and better writers than there ever were.

Writers seek the pulse of their public. If there are not more "solid" books, it is because public taste has changed, not the writers. No one writes a book like "Henry Esmond" or "Daniel Deronda" now because nobody would read them.

But he who misses the good old books misses much. There is not only stamina and strength in our patient soldierly rows of gold-lettered leather-backed "sets" that are so ornamental in our bookcases, but all sorts of delightful things we grope for and miss in the modern subtle aphorisms of Molnar and Arien.

At ten or twelve years of age I was made to read "David Copperfield," "The Deserted Village," "Paul and Virginia" and so forth when I wanted to read the Elsie books. I didn't understand half the words then.

It took me twenty years to learn gratitude to the wise parent who commanded it.

EUROPE HINTS
UNITED STATES
COVETS RICHES

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The continental European mentality has completely misunderstood American intervention in Nicaragua and the consequent possibility of trouble with Mexico. Europeans judge the landing of marines in Central America strictly from the European point of view—a sign of the United States' domination by virtue of weight of arms and money over the entire territory south of the Rio Grande.

President Coolidge's message to Congress has been almost totally misconstrued as a merely usual official form of justification of the administration's policy, which is domination nevertheless. Continental newspapers assume in some cases that Washington intervened in Nicaragua in order to protect the projected American canal.

Paris Newspaper Waxes Sarcastic
L'Ouvre asks with some sarcasm, "Is it to conquer Central America that the United States demands our money?" The French Foreign Office has not commented on Nicaragua. It is known, however, that official circles view the United States-Nicaragua-Mexico affair, coupled with the Chinese civil war, as having a direct reaction on European affairs. Diplomats and politicians alike recall that France was saved from disaster by an alliance with England in the first months of the World war and with the United States in the latter months of that struggle.

The armistice came and Paris treaty negotiations followed with the general understanding between the "Big Three" that there should be in the future a close understanding if not actual alliances. French diplomacy is now watching these two powerful ex-allies rapidly shift interest far from Europe while France remains on the old battle ground, allied only with the Little Entente and Poland.

Sees New Entanglements
The events in Nicaragua and Mexico are regarded in Paris as new entanglements for the United States, drawing Washington's concern farther away from Europe, not only politically but financially. French diplomats, if not the French public, have paid the closest serious attention to protests against American-Nicaragua intervention from Argentina, Peru and Chile and have recalled the Brazilian coffee quarrel a year ago as indicating a growing South American hostility.

In brief, they see this situation, added to the antipathy of Mexicans and Nicaraguans, as a sort of Latin American solidarity against alleged United States domination. All that, added to the Far Eastern troubles, has convinced them that continental Europe is becoming isolated from the world point of view, and if conflict takes place here as a result of German, Italian or soviet policies, Anglo-Saxon assistance must be discounted.

Los Angeles Business Man Suffering Months From Constipation, Indigestion and Run-Down Condition Regains Health With Tanlac

Mr. Harry Franklin, a well-known Los Angeles manufacturer with offices at 918 Broadway, says: "My experience proves that nearly everyone can now have good health. "Then I turned to Tanlac, determined to give it a fair trial. From the first bottle it helped me. Within a few weeks I found myself with more energy than I had known in months, a fine appetite, good digestion—I feel that I could eat nails without harm—I am so built up in every way."

EVENING SALUTATION

If I were asked to say the most important things that lead to a successful life I should say that first of all was integrity, unimpeachable integrity. No man can ever be anything of any great value in life and have the confidence and approval of his fellow-men or be successful in his undertakings with other business men if he does not have the reputation of being a man of honor and integrity.

BY ALL MEANS PROTECT THE CITRUS INDUSTRY

The Register calls attention to the informative article appearing in today's People's Forum. This article from V. V. Tubbs, well known citrus grower, gives rather a complete review of the extensive duties and responsibilities of the office of County Horticultural Commissioner. The Horticultural Commissioner himself could not have covered the subject any more fully.

The article gives emphasis to the necessity of protecting the citrus industry from invasions from pests, and outlines the relationship of the Horticultural Commissioner's office to other crops of the county. We believe that the work of the department in general, however, has been very well understood by the residents of this county. At least, The Register has printed many columns of matter concerning it, and has held its columns open at all times to the Horticultural Commissioner, as it has to the Health department, the County Aid Commissioner, the County Hospital or any other department of our county government that might desire to make its work better known to the people of the county.

Therefore The Register is not willing to plead guilty to ignorance of the work of the Horticultural Commissioner's department. On the contrary, we aver that in general we have kept up quite well with that department's activities. At least, we have published for our own and for the public's information whatever articles have come to us from the horticultural office. But The Register was not represented at the meetings of the grand jury. The law holds that it is best for grand jury sessions to be secret. Therefore, we had no first hand information as to just what occurred there, just why the Horticultural Commissioner's office was asking for additional help. So, when the grand jury report came out and we were informed by three members of the grand jury that the question of additional help was passed on hurriedly the last day of the session, we felt justified as a newspaper in saying that "we are awaiting further information before we reach a conclusion."

We are fully aware of the importance of the work of the Horticultural Department. It ought to have whatever help it can use to advantage to do its work thoroughly and well. We are also mindful of the vast importance of the citrus industry to this county, and have always given that industry consistent, loyal support, and will surely continue to do so. But we are also mindful of the importance of being sure that we get full value for all expenditures of public moneys, and that a wise and just apportionment thereof be maintained.

The tremendous importance of the citrus industry to Orange county cannot be underestimated. Valencia oranges top the list of our crops. In fact, we consider the citrus industry of such paramount importance that we believe it deserving of weeks of time of a grand jury, if that much time is necessary to lay before the grand jury complete information concerning the needs of the industry. And failure to take the necessary time by the grand jury as a whole to study the needs of the Horticultural Commissioner's office may be the sole reason why there was any difference of opinion among the grand jurors.

The general policy of the grand jury had been to decline recommendations for additional help and raises in salaries for all county offices; there was an effort on the part of the grand jury to hold the payroll as near to what it now is as possible, in all offices. Then, on the last day of the grand jury's work, came the action granting the Horticultural Commissioner's office a recommendation for everything it asked for in the way of additional help. It is very true that a committee of the grand jury had been at work on the matter, and had interviewed many citrus growers on the subject. But the grand jury as a whole received the matter on the last day, and passed the recommendation, and at least three members of the grand jury believed the action to have been hurried. This situation was touched upon in an editorial concerning the grand jury report. This editorial brought about today's Forum article, which is published exactly as presented, though we feel that there are inferences therein as to The Register's attitude that are not entirely fair to The Register.

So far as The Register is concerned, we are now perfectly satisfied with the recommendation. A number of citrus men, who above all others should know the needs of the industry, have gone over the situation with us. They believe the money sought is vitally needed. The money had better be used many times over rather than take a chance. We might suggest, however, that hereafter when such a need arises, the matter ought to be taken before the grand jury early enough for a full discussion, so that the recommendation would be unanimous. We believe that any grand jury that fully understands a need will make a recommendation fully satisfactory to an industry as important as is the citrus industry, and that the taxpayers will back them up in it.

PARENTAL EDUCATION

An institute of parental education is to be started in Cleveland in February. Such eminent psychologists as Dr. Garry Myers and Dr. Henry C. Shumacher will be among the 17 members of the faculty.

In this institute, according to present announcements, will be assembled and systematized all the knowledge so far available bearing on the training, education, feeding, health and recreation of children.

Putting some scientific knowledge and trained intelligence into the rearing of children won't take any love out of the process. In fact, it may work out that this training for parents may enable them to put more love into the job, because they won't have to waste much time in despair and worry over baffling problems as they come up. They can take these problems to the institute and from the instructors or from other parents they will learn what to do or what not to do.

It is an interesting development and indicates not only new efforts on the part of educators, but new ideals and purposes and determination on the part of parents. A lot of infants in their cribs ought to crow for joy at the news.

The printer who was responsible for "gorilla warfare in Mexico" wasn't so far wrong at that. When you get right down to facts, how much warfare is human?

Contributions to Industry

Riverside Enterprise

Dr. H. J. Webber reminded the people of Riverside of the value of the University of California Citrus Experiment station to the greatest horticultural industry in the country Wednesday in his talk to members of the Riverside Rotary Club. He told them of an institution that has grown from a small beginning in its present location to a large one with research men working on the solution of problems of extreme importance not only to the citrus industry but to all forms of horticulture and agriculture, in the control and eradication of insect pests, plant diseases and soil defects.

It is true that a community as a whole can easily lose sight of a famous institution devoted to scientific and educational endeavor, if it is located closely at hand, while the well informed people of all parts of the world who keep abreast of its activities give it the credit that is its due. At the same time, the human element is one that deserves consideration and attention. As Dr. Webber stated, men engaged in any sort of endeavor, appreciate commendation and encouragement. Recognition from their home friends is of as much importance as recognition from the scientific leaders who understand fully the immense value of their work in adding to the sum total of achievement in establishing new cultural and preventive measures that will add greatly to production of important fruits and food crops.

Men who discover the cures for plant diseases, import insecticides to prey upon offensive insect pests and spend years in research work to bring back the fertility of soil that has been impregnated with elements that have destroyed its usefulness, are benefactors of the race and while the average citizen in his mad race for quick returns and immediate results in all that he undertakes and does, may grow impatient for speed in completion of experiments and research work that it may take years to complete to the point where the scientist can truthfully say that he has reached a final solution, when the solution is actually reached, its results may add millions of dollars to the sum total of the value of production and may also bring happiness and success to millions of people.

America Leads in Crime

Fresno Republican

In his listing of the reasons why America leads the world in crime Chief Justice Taft, writing in Collier's, places the motor car at the van because he believes there is the greatest incentive to crime in the motor car and the fine roads we build for it to run on. The reason for this, he states, is simply the immunity from punishment achieved by the quickness with which crime can be committed and escape be had, making detection most difficult.

The automobile, of course, is only a contributing factor in our crime situation. It is of about the same importance as the machine gun. The thing that promotes crime, as much as anything, is the stake these hold-up gangs bid for, and the natural consequence of rich reward is gang organization.

The thing they are after and the organization they perfect to get it are the main factors in the making of American criminals these days, we would say.

The enormous amount of wealth involved in the plunder whets the appetite of the criminal class, most of which has come to us from foreign countries, and drives them in their cunning and shrewdness to deeds of death. The automobile only helps them out.

The important consideration is, however, what we are going to do about this crime wave.

The American city will have to develop police forces capable of competing with some of the most daring criminals in the world. And when the police officers catch the criminals our courts will have to hold them in prison. Vigorous action and plenty of it will do more to discourage criminality than anything else we know of. This involves both police work and a change in our laws. We can speed up the police work, but it will take some time to change the laws, so let us have the advantage of the former while we are waiting for the latter.

EUROPEAN TUBERCULOSIS 'CURES'
Among the newer methods of treatment for tuberculosis which have been widely discussed in the public press, the secret remedy developed by Henri Spahlinger of Geneva, Switzerland, has received most attention, unless it be for that recently given to the gold treatment developed by Mollgaard. Today the general medical opinion is that the Mollgaard gold treatment has but a limited field, and is certainly not established as a specific method for the treatment of tuberculosis.

The Spahlinger method has received much attention in England, where attempts have been made to obtain for it government support and considerable money endowment.

Dr. Thomas Nelson discussed recently ten cases of tuberculosis treated by Spahlinger personally in 1913. It occurred to Doctor Nelson to find the condition today of the ten patients who were treated by Spahlinger at that time. Of the men and women injected with his remedy, the ages varied from 18 to 50 years. All of the cases, except two, were tuberculosis of the lungs, and these concerned one case of spine infection and one of tuberculous infection of the skin called lupus.

The patients received varied amounts of the remedy during the period of a year, one receiving three injections and several more than twenty-five injections. Of the patients studied, the one with lupus, was still alive after ten years. It is well known that such patients do not tend to develop the severe form of tuberculosis of the lungs sometimes seen in others.

The same was true of the patient with tuberculosis of the spine. One of the patients with tuberculosis of the lungs could not be found, but of the remaining seven all were dead.

It was the opinion of Dr. Nelson that none of these patients showed any improvement after treatment, at least certainly no more than is regularly seen with ordinary care.

The Spahlinger treatment must be considered as in no way established and not worthy of consideration by any American who may feel that he ought to go abroad to secure injections either in England or in Switzerland where they may be available.

Beauty In Community Life

Pasadena Star-News

Beauty is not something to be left wholly to poets and painters. It belongs to the common people as well. And commoners should claim their inheritance of beauty. Here in California, where summer is perennial and where natural beauty is the natural order, all are familiar with the varied forms of beauty. Here beauty indeed is an asset, just as truly as are business blocks, or rows of residences.

Nor does beauty ally itself solely with the opulent. Some of the most beautiful homes one sees are modest cottages, three, four, or five rooms, on lots 50 by 150. There is the witchery of flowers, and shrubs, and vines, and trees, all blended and intertwined and thrown into a picturesque composite. There the eye loves to dwell.

But beauty is unconfined. It lurks around every corner, here in California. It has no exclusive abiding place. It comes and dwells among the common people and the poor, as well as among those who dwell in mansions and who measure their landscape gardens by acres.

There is beauty here in almost infinite variety. Flower; frond; shrub; vine; tree; greensward; pool; hill; valley; mountain; park; wildwood. And out in the great open where beauty is beheld as "God's trademark in creation."

And the wondrous human reactions to this realm of diverse beauty! As home-folk and strangers go forth and behold the manifold beauties of landscape, seascape and skyscape, the question wells up in the heart, "Does not beauty confer a benefit upon us, even by the simple fact of being beautiful?"

It is well always to cultivate beauty here. It is well to place it high on the pedestal among human delights, where it belongs. And it becomes a cultured people to maintain devotion to beauty in art, in nature, in humanity, in all the wide universe—imbued with the poet's conviction that—

A thing of beauty is a joy forever;
Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness.

Worth While Verse

A DOUBTING HEART

Where are the swallows fled?
Frozen and dead
Perchance upon some bleak and stormy shore.
O doubting heart!
Far over purple seas
They wait, in sunny ease,
The balmy southern breeze,
To bring them to their northern homes once more.

Why must the flowers die?
Prisoned they lie
In the cold tomb, heedless of tears or rain.
O doubting heart!
They only sleep below
The soft white ermine snow
While winter winds shall blow
To breathe and smile upon you soon again.

The sun has hid its rays
These many days;
Will dreary hours never leave the earth?
O doubting heart!
The stormy clouds on high
Veil the same sunny sky
That soon (for spring is nigh)
Shall wake the summer into golden mirth.

Fair hope is dead, and light
Is quenched in night.
What sound can break the silence of despair?
O doubting heart!
The sky is overcast,
Yet stars shall rise at last,
Brighter for darkness past,
And angels' silver voices stir the air.

Your Income Tax

This is one of a series of articles, based on the revenue act of 1926, written by the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue.

No. 13.

To the taxpayer whose gross or net income for 1926 was $5000 or less, and was derived chiefly from salary or wages, the problem of correctly making out an income-tax return is not difficult. Such returns are made on Form 1040A, a single sheet. Persons, any part of whose net income, regardless of amount, was derived from a business or profession, including farming, are required to use the larger form, 1040.

The gross income of the usual business consists of the gross profits on sales, plus any income from investments and incidental or outside operations or sources. The return must show the gross sales, purchases, and cost of goods sold. To reflect net income correctly, inventories are necessary at the beginning and end of each taxable year.

The lawyer, doctor, architect, author, dentist, clergyman, or other professional man must, in gross income, include all fees, salaries, and compensation for professional services.

The farmer is required to report as gross income all profits derived from the sale or exchange of farm products and livestock, whether produced on the farm or purchased and resold. The fair market value of merchandise or groceries ex-

Marvellous Sea Wanderers

New York Herald-Tribune

Scandinavian scientists, Chase S. Osborn told the Lake Champlain Association the other night, believe that Leif Ericson and his Vikings explored "virtually the entire eastern section of the United States" during the eleventh century; that they visited the mouth of the Hudson in 1001 and discovered Lake Champlain in 1011.

Some day, perhaps, Governor Osborn will give us a book, comparable to his famous work describing the man-eating tree of Madagascar, telling of these Viking explorers. Hitherto all the efforts to identify Viking monuments in the United States have washed out; and most students of the Norse sagas have agreed that Leif Ericson never got beyond Nova Scotia if, indeed, his open boats ever wandered so far south. But the old Norse rovers were such marvellous sailors and we know so little of their feats that lovers of romance still have reason to hope.

Leif Ericson certainly visited the American continent nearly five centuries before Columbus, and probably Norsemen touched its shores many times thereafter. They were a hard breed. Leif's father, Eric the Red, outlawed from Iceland, colonized Greenland in the year 983, although only fourteen of the twenty-five ships with which he set out reached their goal. Greenland may have been somewhat warmer then than it is now—and even today carrots and turnips are grown in its southern villages, which are hardly farther north than Leningrad—but it was cold comfort. Some fifteen years later young Leif set out, compassless, in an open ship jammed with cattle, sheep and men, all probably seasick, and discovered "Vinland." The first mention of Vinland occurs in the writings of Adam of Bremen, a German priest who had visited the Danish coast, and heard there tales told by the Icelandic poet Thorkell the Fair about 1050. But the detail of the story we owe to the Ericsaga, which certainly does not date from earlier than the first years of the thirteenth century, and the Flat-isle Book, a century and a half younger, which allows plenty of time for elaboration.

Vinland, according to the Greenland tradition, lay south of Markland, and Markland lay south of Helluland. Probably Leif was not the first to visit Helluland, notable for its hard, flat cliffs and rocks—almost certainly what we call Northern Labrador. Markland was a land of woods and forests (possibly South Labrador, or Newfoundland), and the Greenlanders continued to visit it, probably for wood—the trunks of Greenland trees are at best three inches in diameter—for nearly four centuries after Leif's day. Vinland lived in the sagas because it was a land where grapes grew and grain was planted. Leif's brother tried to revisit it in 1001, but lost his way; Thorfinn Karlsefni made a vain attempt to colonize it in the years 1003-06. And then the region fades out of the annals.

Dr. Nansen once compared the Vinland narrative with other medieval traditions of mysterious Blessed Isles in mid-Atlantic, and concluded by discrediting even Leif. But Leif's details are so matter of fact and common sense that most students credit them. At best, however, he and his followers were seamen who made adventurous excursions along unknown coast. It is difficult to believe that their landing parties made any month-long excursion into the interior, such as discovery of Lake Champlain would have involved.

Cousins

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

FAMILY relationships are often bewildering to a small child. Relatives, to him, are just like other folks who don't live at his house and yet these chosen few seem to feel they belong somehow and often take decided liberties with one. They talk about one, they kiss one, and monopolize one's parents—they even try to discipline one sometimes. Grandparents are very nice as a rule, but the little demon of jealousy comes crowding in when one's parents call them father and mother. That's a bit too much. The child's troubles and bewilderment regarding relationships should be taken seriously and explained carefully, perhaps over and over. Laughing at a child may cause him to keep his worry to himself and even develop jealous aversions to folks he would and should love if relationships were only explained properly to him.

OUR cousins live a long, long way.

One can't get there in less'n a day.
We take our car and drive and drive,
And day is gone when we arrive.
The sky is all a glowy red
And the littlest cousins are in bed.

There are Cousin Ann, and Jane, and Bill,
With a lot more cousins 'cross the hill,
And while the littlest cousins play
The big ones come and go all day,
With hardly any rest between,
Examinin' me, "So this is Jean!"

I don't know every cousin's name,
But act politely just the same;
I play and do just as the rest,
But what I really like the best
Is chasing chipmunks 'round a log
Out in a field with Cousin Dog!
